W.Va. Catholic Schools Continue to Outperform Counterparts

National Report Card Notes Public School Decline

WHEELING — As West Virginia Catholic school students continue to outperform their public-school counterparts on the state and national levels, Catholic school administrators are aiming to do even better.

This fall the U.S. Department of Education National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) reported public schools’ standardized assessments are “appalling and unacceptable.” While education experts attribute increasing rates in decline as a snowball effect to the COVID-19 pandemic, Catholic school administrators are able to tout steady increases in student achievement. During and since the pandemic Catholic schools in West Virginia have been able to continue to move forward instead of catching up.

NCES and The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP), a congressionally authorized project sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education, reported that math and reading results for the nation are down, and like many of the states, West Virginia’s public school scores are lower than the national average. Meanwhile Catholic schools scores remain higher than the state and national averages according to the Nation’s Report Card reported by NAEP.

“Private and Catholic schools are expected to outperform public schools, so that is not the grabbing headline, but what is important to highlight is that when we faced a crisis situation, we were ready from the top down to quickly work together to problem solve – turn a challenge into an opportunity, because we did that and continue to do so – our students have not fallen through the cracks,” Superintendent of Catholic Schools in West Virginia Mary Ann Deschaine, Ed.S. said. “Our principals and teachers turned on a dime to provide lessons remotely, while reaching out to our students and families to monitor progress and their well-being. We responded without hesitation and then put our heads together on how to safely get back into the classroom as soon as possible.”

It was that swift and decisive faith filled decision making to prioritize our students’ academic progress, as well as mental and physical health that set them apart, she said.

“We are not perfect, nor do we pretend to be, but with a steadfast focus on our faith we trust God will continue to guide us to help our children reach their full potential,” Deschaine said.

Backed by assessments that are given three times a year, the Catholic Schools of West Virginia can provide educators, families, and the students the opportunity to identify any learning gaps, as well as identify areas where the student can be challenged at a higher level.

The diocesan schools partner with the Northwest Evaluation Association (NWEA) for their state-aligned, online Measure of Academic Progress (MAP) assessments.

“Our MAP assessments truly serve as a roadmap for us for grade level aptitude, and college and career readiness,” Associate Superintendent Jennifer Verity said.

“The NWEA tests are adaptive, meaning students are measured where they are across grade levels instead of just at their grade level,” Hornyk said. “They “online test adjusts during the assessment based on the student’s right or wrong answers. A right answer challenges the student to a harder question. A wrong answer bumps down a level to identify where the student’s abilities lie.“

Deschaine added assessing the focus of the Catholic school system is also key to the overall success of the students.

“Just as we expect our students to be better than yesterday in every way, we look at ourselves as a whole system to do the same,” she said, noting the system’s Intentional Growth Plan (IGP) – a four-year roadmap of accountability for stronger Catholic grade and high schools in the state. “In collaboration with our principals, pastors, priests, parents, alumni, and diocesan staff work to continually improve and grow in our Catholic identity, leadership, academic excellence, and operational vitality. Hand in hand with our Cognia accreditation process we continue to evaluate our performance not only in the classroom, but also across the board and then aim higher.” Enrollment retention is part of the IGP.

Prior to the pandemic Catholic schools across the nation were reporting a steady decline in enrollment. However, in the last year those numbers have reversed. The Catholic grade schools have seen a 5.8% increase, and the preschool level experienced a 33.5% enrollment increase from the Fall of 2020 to the Fall of 2021.

“In the 18 months, we have seen more enrollment retention and increases than we have seen in decades in our Catholic schools, as parents prioritized in-person learning, values, mental health, and social interaction in addition to academic success and the critical value of being together. Our schools provide an environment that is an extension of family. We are committed to providing a quality education and are unapologetically Catholic. Lessons in Catholic faith are integrated into all subject areas and activities.”

Reports following 2020 show that transfer students are doing well in the Catholic school setting. According to the National Catholic Education Association Association, 4,400 parents said their child had positive academic experiences and 90% said the communication received from the school was excellent.

“Another finding, said the best attribute of Catholic schools is the caring and effective faculty and staff,” Deschaine said. “Parents may be choosing to enroll in our school because of a desire to have reliable in-person learning or higher test scores, but the bottom line is those things happen, because our teachers and staff truly care about the children sitting in our classrooms.”

Families who have applied for the state’s Hope Scholarship Program – an education savings account (ESA) – are welcome to apply. It is important to note that the Hope Scholarship program is run by the state of Virginia and is separate from the WV Catholic school system. St. Peter Parish in Farmington Celebrates 100th Anniversary

By Colleen Rowan

Today we celebrate the 100th anniversary of the dedication of our church, where we gather every Sunday to thank God, to worship God,” said Father Binu Emmanuel, CST, to begin the Nov. 6 Mass celebrating this joyful and momentous time in the life of St. Peter the Apostle Parish in Farmington.

In welcoming all to the celebration, Father Emmanuel shared that he is the 19th priest to serve at the parish. He is administrator of St. Peter’s.

“Friends,” he said, “as we rejoice on the 100th anniversary of the dedication of our parish, I feel humbled to stand before you.”

Father Emmanuel also welcomed Bishop Mark Brennan, who celebrated the Mass, as well as concelebrants Very Rev. Casey B. Mahone, V.F., pastor of Immaculate Conception Parish in Clarksburg; Very Rev. Donald X. Higgs, V.F., rector of the Basilica of the Co-Cathedral of the Sacred Heart in Charleston; and Father Kishore Babu Varaparla, HGN, administrator of Immaculate Conception Parish in Fairmont.

“It’s important to celebrate anniversaries,” Bishop Brennan said at the beginning of the Mass. “They are markers for us along a journey. We look back and we thank God for those who established this parish. We thank God for those who established this community of Catholic faith here in Farmington. It’s a challenge to us now to carry on, to bring forth the fruits of our faith into this community.”

A reception was held following the jubilee Mass. During the Mass and festivities, senior parishioners Alice Priester, Rosalee Menas, and Violet Alasky were honored. Also recognized were parishioners who have been married for 50 years or longer: Donnie and Diane Aloi, Jack and Ruth Lemley, Manuel and Paula Llaneza, Richard and Charlotte Kovar, George and Betty Joe Tippner, and Keith and Mary Raddish.

New members who joined the parish during the jubilee year were also recognized. They are Daniel and Abbie Faith, Delaina Kucish, Bernadette Harker, and Theresa Davies.

Bishop Brennan presented the awards, and St. Peter Parish Council President Kathy Pitman was the emcee at the reception.

According to information compiled by parishioner Franchesca Aloi, St. Peter Church was established in 1859. At that time the Baltimore and Ohio railroads passed through the Fairmont area and brought an increase of Catholics. St. Peter’s was a mission church of St. Peter the Fisherman Parish in Fairmont then and Mass was only celebrated in Farmington once a month in private homes.

In 1878, St. Peter’s lot was purchased. In 1932, the Altar and Rosary Society and Legion of Mary Catechism was started. In 1949, the altar was extended, a sacristy was added, a kitchen was built in the parish hall, and the property across from the church was purchased. In 1957, parish activities increased, and a parent educator group was started. A memorial to coal miners was built that year. In 1969, St. Peter’s began to grow more spiritually and there was an increase in mission work and liturgy study. The church underwent extensive remodeling. In 1995, the pastor of St. Patrick Parish in Mannington also became the pastor of St. Peter’s, and the parish hall was completed.

Parishioners said St. Peter’s has always been a parish built on faith, love, service, community, and honesty.

On Guadalupe Feast, U.S. Church Reaffirms its Solidarity with Immigrants

By Catholic News Service
WASHINGTON (CNS) — On the feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe, the U.S. bishops’ migration chairman re-affirmed the church’s solidarity with immigrants, “each one of them a brother or sister to us all.”

“When we speak about the issue of immigration, we are fundamentally addressing the movement of people — human persons created in the image and likeness of God,” said Bishop Mark J. Seitz of El Paso, Texas, chairman of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops’ Committee on Migration.

“Unfortunately, this truth is often obscured by political rhetoric, fear-mongering and hyperbole. Our Lady of Guadalupe points us toward a better way, one that ultimately leads to reconciliation,” he said in a statement issued late Dec. 12.

“The bishops of the United States continue to affirm the natural right to migrate, balanced with the sovereign right of countries to uphold their borders, as well as their obligations to provide humane processes for newcomers,” Bishop Seitz added.

He said the bishops also believe that “time, resources and political will are best spent making structural improvements to our broken immigration system.”

With the arrival of “greater numbers of families and individuals at our border with Mexico,” the federal government must provide “critical infrastructure” to “meet their humanitari-an needs.”

During Advent especially, “these newcomers are visible signs of Christ among us,” Bishop Seitz said. “Let us meet this moment not with policies of exclusion and indifference but with a spirit of compassion and generosity. We pledge our support and cooperation in meeting these challenges.”

He invited Catholics and all people of faith to pray “that through the intercession of Our Lady of Guadalupe, we may give comfort to those forced to leave their homes, and may Our Lady be a guide to all those entrusted with the responsibility of leadership.”

Our Lady of Guadalupe is a symbol of unity, peace, compassion and hope for people around the world. She is the patroness of all the Americas.

Her feast day is marked by special Masses, colorful processions and the recitation of the rosary to commemorate Mary’s miraculous appearances as Our Lady of Guadalupe to the visionary St. Juan Diego at Tepeyac Hill near what is today Mexico City in December 1531, when she left her image on his “tilma,” or cloak.

Fiestas featuring mariachi bands and “matachines,” or dancers, also are part of celebrations of the Marian feast.

The Devil is Sneaky, so Christians Must be Watchful, Pope Says

By Cindy Wooden, Catholic News Service
VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Vigilance is an essential part of the spiritual life because the devil will try to sneak in when one is not paying attention or, especially, when a Christian thinks he or she is making a lot of progress on the road to holiness, Pope Francis said.

“When we trust too much in ourselves and not in God’s grace, then the Evil One finds the door open. So, he organizes an expedition and takes possession of that house,” which is a person’s spiritual life, the pope said Dec. 14 at his weekly general audience.

Since late August, the pope has been using his general audience talks to explain the process of spiritual discernment according to the teaching of St. Ignatius of Loyola, founder of the Jesuits.

When discernment has led to a good decision, one that increases spiritual growth and brings one closer to doing the Lord’s will, he said, the process is not complete.

“If vigilance is lacking,” the pope said, there is “a very high risk that all will be lost. It is a danger not of a psychological, but of a spiritual order, a real snare of the evil spirit.”

Part of discernment is being watchful to safeguard one’s heart and soul, he said. Vigilance “is the frame of mind of Christians who await the final coming of the Lord; but it also can be understood as the normal attitude to have in the context of life, so that our good choices, taken at times after challenging discernment, may proceed in a persevering and consistent manner and bear fruit.”

In greeting French speakers at the audience, the pope noted how Advent reminds Christians of the importance of watchfulness or vigilance.

“We await the coming of the Lord, and we remain attentive to our more fragile brothers and sisters who knock at the door of our hearts,” the pope said. “This is how we build our lives with discernment and consistent with the Gospel.”

“Let us ask the Lord to keep us vigilant in humility and in availability to those in need, he said.

When one does something good, the pope said, there often is a temptation of pride, “the presumption of being righteous, of being good, of having everything in place. Often, we will hear someone say, ‘Yes, I was bad before, but I converted and now my house is in order, thanks be to God,’ and they relax.”

At moments like that, the pope said, the devil will not overpower a person, but will be very “polite” and ask to come in, then he will make himself at home.

“Watch over your heart because vigilance is a sign of wisdom, it is above all a sign of humility and of knowing that without God’s help, one can fail, the pope said. “Humility is the high road of the Christian life.”

Like 5th Circuit, 8th Circuit Strikes Down Biden’s Transgender Mandate

By Catholic News Service
WASHINGTON (CNS) — The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis Dec. 9 permanently blocked a transgender mandate the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services implemented as a revision to the Affordable Care Act. The mandate forces doctors and hospitals to perform gender-transition procedures on their patients even if this violates their conscience and best medical judgment. The 8th Circuit concluded the mandate violates a key federal law protecting religious liberty — the Religious Freedom Restoration Act. The Biden administration has 45 days from the date of the ruling to ask the 8th Circuit to rehear the case, Sisters of Mercy v. Becerra, or 90 days to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

“The federal government has no business forcing doctors to violate their consciences or perform controversial procedures that could permanently harm their patients,” said Luke Goodrich, vice president and senior counsel at Becket, a Washington-based religious liberty law firm representing the plaintiffs. “This is a commonsense ruling that protects patients, aligns with best medical practice, and ensures doctors can follow their Hippocratic oath to ‘do no harm,’” he said in a Dec. 9 statement.

The 8th Circuit’s ruling echoes a unanimous ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, which struck down the mandate in a late August ruling in Franciscan Alliance v. Becerra. The Biden administration had until Nov. 25 to appeal the 5th Circuit’s decision to the U.S. Supreme Court, but no appeal was filed.

“Courage is doing the work of God” — Pope St. John Paul II
RCIA is Now ‘OCIA’: What’s Behind Name Change?

By Daniel Meloy, Catholic News Service

IRA TOWNSHIP, Mich. (CNS) — For anyone interested in becoming Catholic, wishing to complete the sacraments or wanting to learn more about what the church teaches, the answer for decades was “join RCIA.”

The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults, the process by which the church brings in new converts and educates catechumens and candidates, has been a staple in Catholic life and lingo for years.

But in November 2021, the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops changed the name of one of the best-known acronyms in the church, reorienting the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults (RCIA) into the new Order of Christian Initiation of Adults (OCIA).

So, is the new answer simply, “join OCIA”? Yes, but there’s more to it than that.

The change from “rite” to “order” is in part because of a retransliteration of the Latin name into English, said Mercy Sister Esther Mary Nickel, director of sacred worship in the Archdiocese of Detroit’s Department of Evangelization and Missionary Discipleship.

“(The bishops) retranslated the Order of Initiation of Adult Catechumens (Ordo Initiationis Christianae Adultorum) from Latin,” Sister Nickel told Detroit Catholic, the archdiocese’s news outlet.

“When I studied in Rome, we had OCIA, because it was all in Latin. All we have done is taken the ‘O,’ which is ‘ordo,’ and made it back to ‘order,’ instead of the ‘R’ for ‘rite.’ I don’t want to say it was a mistranslation, but the new translation is more comprehensive.”

It might seem like semantics, but changing the process of entering the church from a “rite” to an “order” has practical implications, Sister Nickel said.

For one thing, rites are still part of the order but the new structure is meant to invite candidates and catechumens into a continuous process of spiritual formation as opposed to fixed checkpoints on the path to baptism, first communion and confirmation.

Ideally, those interested in joining OCIA would not have to wait until the fall to do so, Sister Nickel said.

“We want to propose and help people institute in Families of Parishes (parish clusters) an ongoing catechesis and formation so people can come into the church more frequently and not necessarily wait to begin the process of faith formation as disciples. That will be the big difference of a yearlong catechesis and accompaniment,” she explained.

The catechumenate is meant to be an ongoing formation process in which the initiated are invited to become involved in the parish, attend Mass and OCIA classes and work with catechists in delving into topics such as creation, salvation, the sacraments, the church and the four “last things” (death, judgment, heaven and hell).

Still part of the OCIA process are rites such as the Rite of Entrance to the Catechumenate and the Rite of Sending, which both occur at the parish level, and the Rite of Election, which occurs at the cathedral with the bishop, said Amy Wyss, associate director of sacred worship at the archdiocese.

“Following that is a series of rites called the scrutinies, and after that are the Rites of Initiation,” Wyss explained.

These rites are not new to the church, but by making the entire process an “order,” the candidate or catechumen understands the rites received in church or at the parish are just one part of the ongoing journey of discipleship that will culminate with baptism and confirmation — usually during the Easter Vigil — but will continue throughout their lives.

Catechumens (those who have yet to be baptized) and candidates (those yet to be confirmed in full communion with the Catholic Church) will not progress to the next rite in the OCIA process until they are ready, Wyss said.

“It’s about a relationship with Jesus Christ. It’s about coming to knowledge of Jesus Christ and then bringing my life into conformity with his teachings. Yes, we’re involved in these beautiful experiences in the liturgy that are integrally part of this. But what is happening is the process of coming into relationship with our Lord,” she said.

A major benefit is that people can enter the OCIA process at any time in the calendar year and can receive the sacraments of initiation at any time, not just during Easter.

“For those coming into the catechumenate, it’s not a straight line where everyone is doing the same thing or on the same path,” said Tina Kovalick, director of religious education at Immaculate Conception Parish in Ira Township, 40 miles northeast of Detroit.

“If they are not ready to go through to the next step, we don’t push them. It is up to the catechumens and the pastor, and if they are not at the level of faith yet, we don’t go through with the next rite. Likewise, others really catch on it and are ready almost immediately.”

The OCIA process encourages candidates and catechumens to take charge of their faith education, ask questions of catechists and explore the answers.

Most catechumens and candidates will still be received into the church during the Easter Vigil, but OCIA encourages them to get involved in the parish community even before they receive the sacraments, sowing seeds of discipleship that will grow well beyond confirmation, said Matthew Hunt, director of religious education at St. Thecla Parish in Clinton Township, near Detroit.

In some cases, a person might be spiritually ready to join the church before Easter, and that’s an option, Hunt said.

“Instead of just waiting, if a person has the conviction in their heart, if they are ready, they can join the church quicker than waiting for the Easter Vigil,” Hunt said. “For a lot of people, the waiting sometimes is the downfall. You have to wait and go through the process, and some people need that. But at any point a priest can get a special dispensation to do confirmation.”

BRIDGEPORT — On Sunday afternoon, Nov. 20 in a solemn ceremony held at All Saints in Bridgeport, Zachary Lunsford recently received a most prestigious award as a Scout, the award of Eagle Scout. He has been in Scouts for 10 years.

In order to achieve the rank of an Eagle Scout, a scout first has to achieve several ranks in Scouting. While working towards “Eagle”, a big part of the requirements is a service project that benefits the community.

For his project, he planted three trees and put in 2 benches at Compton Park in Bridgeport on June 18 to beautify the park.

A friend of his from high school proposed to his high school girlfriend on one of the benches recently.

As part of the Eagle Scout Curriculum, he also had to earn a total of 21 merit badges. He now has a total of 30.

Once all the rank requirements, merit badges, and project were done, he had to meet with his Scout Master, then upon approval, he had to attend a board of review with the council. A board review consists of 3 or 4 board members from the Mountaineer Scouting Council who come and talk with a scout about their Scouting journey. They also discuss with him about what he did with his project.

Zachary currently attends Bridgeport High School, as a junior and is currently in the Spanish Club, and Spanish Honor Society, and has earned academic letters for the last two years. Over most of his life, Zachary says he is proud to say that he has been involved with his parish of All Saints Church, Bridgeport, in many ways. He has assisted with altar serving, participated as a ‘Wiseman’ in the parish nativity, operated cameras for the online broadcast, and for the last four years he and his brother Matthew have prepared fire for the Easter vigil. He continues to be an active member of the parish.

One of the 12 points of the Scout Law is reverence. Zachary is proud to be an Eagle Scout and a member of All Saints Catholic Church.

CDU Honors Archbishop Cordileone, Champion for Human Dignity, at 39th Gala

Catholic Distance University honored Archbishop Salvatore Cordileone of the Archdiocese of San Francisco with the Founders Award, its highest honor, for his “fearless pastoral leadership in upholding the truths of the Catholic Church” at its annual gala on Nov. 17. The event was held at the St. John Paul II National Shrine in Washington, D.C., and offered the CDU community an opportunity to celebrate the university’s 39th year and look toward its future. The Very Reverend Joseph R. Gibino, pastor and vicar for Evangelization and Catechesis of the Diocese of Brooklyn, served as the Master of Ceremonies.

Archbishop Cordileone Delivers Remarks upon Receiving the Founders Award

CDU Chancellor and USCCB President Archbishop Timothy P. Broglio of the Archdiocese for the Military Services, USA, presented the Founders Award to Archbishop Cordileone, lauding him as “a champion for human dignity, an outspoken advocate for the unborn, mothers in crisis, the rights of migrants and immigrants, and the homeless, and a staunch defender of the Catholic faith” whose mission aligns closely with that of CDU.

Archbishop Cordileone thanked attendees for all they do to support CDU.

“Education is such an important part of rebuilding civilization,” he said, “and our civilization is being attacked on so many fronts.”

“We live in an age that contests all of us—our purpose, our meaning, our meaning in life, what is good,” he said, decrying atrocity after atrocity, “and our civilization is being attacked from so many fronts.”

“What do the cancellers really want to cancel out?” he asked. “It is far more than those who disagree with them. The real activists are seeking to discredit the great protagonists of western civilization—both in the history of our country and in the Church.”

By trying to cancel out western civilization, what the cancellers are really trying to cancel out is the Church,” he continued, explaining that “Mass encapsulates all of western civilization and brings together truth, beauty, and goodness all in one place.”

“We need to gaze upon Christ on the cross and truly behold our king, the one who truly gave all for us though He had no need to receive anything from us. Jesus Himself is the blueprint for a civilization of truth and love, a civilization imbued with a Christian ethos. The drive to cancel this out, then, is a drive to cancel out the founder of the Church, our Lord and savior Jesus Christ.”

Jesus Came to Cancel Out Sin

But, he reminded the crowd, “There is one cancel culture our Lord did come to establish: cancelling out sin. He has done that on the cross, cancelling out the debt we owed to God but could not pay ourselves.”

“That is the good news, and the pattern for how the human person lives in accordance with the original human dignity that God gave us. But someone needs to tell this to the world. To open deaf ears and break through the cacophony of postmodern cancel culture so the message can get out, penetrate hearts, and take root there,” Archbishop Cordileone said.

He thanked the CDU community for using modern technology to educate and evangelize.

Academic Convocation Mass and Graduation

The evening began with an Academic Convocation Mass for the class of 2021-2022, which included a graduation ceremony for the graduates present. They hailed from throughout the USA and Canada.

Archbishop Broglio served as the principal celebrant. The Mass was concelebrated by Archbishop Cordileone, Bishop Michael F. Burbidge of the Diocese of Arlington; Bishop Mark E. Brennan of the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston; Bishop Emeritus Paul S. Loverde of the Diocese of Arlington; Auxiliary Bishop Emeritus Octavio Cisneros of the Diocese of Brooklyn; and 15 priests and deacons.

I have been given the honor and feel very humbled to share my life of Santa Claus. The name of the real Santa is Saint Nicholas. His feast day is December 6th. The earth is wide and great. Saint Nicholas knew he could not get to all on this great and wide earth. He asked good and kind people to go to the children and take their gifts and tell them of the Christ child. To become a Santa for Saint Nicholas you must become an extension of him.

Since I was a young boy, I have always believed in Santa Claus; from me getting the Roy Roger’s cowboy suit to my own bicycle. I have always been involved with the Catholic Church and school in Oak Hill. Then about 37 years ago the Holy Spirit took over. We had a Catholic family, the Killianys, move from Pittsburgh to Oak Hill and we became family friends. Mrs. Kiliany called me one day and said she needed a Santa for their McDonald’s stores in Oak Hill, Summersville and White Sulphur, WV. I said what do I do or say. She told me that I would know what to do; just listen to the children. So, I did that, and what a great feeling it was.

I received a message from a child — that was 37 years ago. I saw through his eyes that I could be Santa Claus. To this day I go visit him and his children. Everyone called me Santa and their bright eyes telling me they believe. One of my favorite remembrances of someone who wanted to sit on Santa’s lap was a beautiful 90-year-old lady who had never sat on Santa’s lap.

My own family knows then I “become” Santa, that my job is serving children. I have had the privilege of being invited to churches, schools, parades, pancake breakfasts, nursing homes, and even families that ask me to visit their homes before Christmas Eve. One of my favorites places to go serve is the beautiful Toys-for-Tots.

I have visited three military bases; Fort Knox, KY, Fort Lewis-McClure base, and Fort Polk, LA. The weather was working in my favor, by the grace of the Holy Spirit, when I visited Fort Polk, LA. I rode in on a “Big Fire Truck”. The temperature got to 32 degrees and it snowed and the “Polar Express Train” came into the Fort Polk base. In fact, the Polar Express Bell is on my hat to this day. I really needed to make the boys and girls happy because at the time most of their parents were deployed overseas.

Every child I see I ask them what they want and I tell them it is Jesus’ birthday. I tell them that I love them and wish them a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to them and their families.

Adults and senior citizens love Santa as much as children! I treat them all the same.

My greatest honor of being Saint Nicholas was when I was asked by the parish priest to carry in our Baby Jesus into the church and place him in the crib. I know that that is the perfect place for Santa Claus to be.

Don’t forget my cookies and milk; and also, the reindeer would love a carrot! "Through a child’s eye you will find love."

Merry Christmas to all. God has truly blessed me and has allowed me to be a man of Saint Nicholas.

Wheeling University & Bethany College Sign Articulation Agreement for Doctor of Physical Therapy Program

WHEELING — The continued partnership between Wheeling University and Bethany College will help produce more well-trained physical therapists to treat patients in West Virginia and across the country.

This month, the two Ohio Valley institutions signed an additional articulation agreement that will allow at least two students a year from Bethany’s undergraduate programs into Wheeling’s Doctor of Physical Therapy program. The students must meet all of the university’s qualifications and academic requirements.

“Wheeling University is happy to sign this agreement with Bethany College, which will offer students from our neighboring institution a seamless transition into our Doctor of Physical Therapy program. This agreement will benefit those students seeking an advanced degree, while producing more physical therapists to meet the health care needs of residents in our local community and across the country,” said Ginny R. Favede, president of Wheeling University.

Bethany’s Interim President Dr. Jamie Caridi added, “Our articulation with Wheeling University will offer Bethanians a new graduate program while maintaining the integrity of traditionally small class sizes and connections with faculty. In offering a field with opportunities in various settings, students will work on developing professional skills while fostering their rich individual development that will translate into ethical care post-graduation. We are thrilled to be able to offer students a new opportunity that allows them to translate values instilled through their time at the college into hands-on work.”

This new partnership between the two institutions will allow students in Bethany’s undergraduate programs who meet the specific qualifications and prerequisites courses, acceptance into Wheeling’s Doctor of Physical Therapy program. A partial listing of the courses/prerequisites include: An overall cumulative undergraduate grade point average of 3.3 on a 4.0 scale or higher; a grade point average of 3.3 on a 4.0 scale or higher in the required prerequisite courses, which include, but are not limited to BIO 124/125, BIO 325/326, BIO 302/303, BIO 328/334, CHEM 110/111, CHEM 112/113, PHYS 101/110, PHYS 102/111, PSYC 101, MAT 160; Higher level courses may be substituted for lower-level courses in the same area; a minimum grade of B in each required prerequisite course.

According to Dr. Alison Kreger, PT, DPT, Ed.D., director of Wheeling’s DPT program, “This collaboration between Wheeling and Bethany will bring more graduates from a West Virginia institution into the university’s Doctor of Physical Therapy program. This partnership will help both Bethany and Wheeling facilitate the training of physical therapy professionals who, upon graduation, will provide quality patient care.”

Bethany Provost and Dean of Faculty Dr. Anjua Ramjee said, “This articulation is allowing Bethany College to offer students a higher level of education while maintaining the added value of being at a smaller institution. We are looking forward to seeing the impact these students will make in a world where we need more health care professionals.”

Wheeling University’s DPT program emphasizes a whole person approach to the investigation of clinical issues using a Problem-Based Learning (PBL) format. PBL encourages teamwork, open discussion, and researching appropriate resources to acquire the essential didactic knowledge.

Through this unique learning format, Wheeling’s physical therapy graduates demonstrate exemplary professionalism, exceptional skills and problem solving, as well as the ability to access and utilize knowledge, reflective of a commitment to life-long learning, according to Kreger.

María acompaña a migrantes que se dirigen al norte, dice papa en la fiesta de Guadalupe

Por Carol Glatz, Catholic News Service

CIUDAD DEL VATICANO (CNS)—Durante este "tiempo amargo" de guerra, hambruna, injusticia, y pobreza, Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe invita a todos a abrir sus vidas a su hijo, Jesús, y aprender a amar a los demás como él lo hace, indicó el papa Francisco.

"El Señor, a través de la Virgen Madre, nos sigue dando a su hijo, que nos llama a la fraternidad, a dejar de lado el egoísmo, la indiferencia, y la enemistad, invitándonos a implicarnos con otros sin 'desmara', a salir al encuentro de nuestros hermanos y hermanas que han sido olvidados y desechados por nuestras sociedades consumistas e indiferentes", expresó.

Hoy, como hace cinco siglos cuando Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe se apareció a San Juan Diego, ella "vino a acompañar al pueblo americano en este duro camino de pobreza, explotación, colonialismo socioeconómico y cultural", dijo el Santo Padre en su homilía durante una misa en la Basílica de San Pedro el 12 de diciembre, fiesta de Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe.

"Ella está en medio de las caravanas que caminan hacia el norte en busca de libertad y bienestar. Ella está en medio del pueblo americano, cuya identidad está amenazada por un paganismo salvaje y explotador, herido por la predicción activa del ateísmo práctico y pragmático", señaló el papa, en comentarios escritos a mano que no formaban parte de su texto preparado previamente.

Debido a su dificultad para caminar, el papa Francisco no participó en la procesión hacia la basílica y se sentó a la derecha del altar.

El cardenal Marc Ouelet, prefecto del Dicasterio para los Obispos, fue el celebrante principal. Después de incesar el altar, se dirigió a una réplica de la tilma de San Juan Diego, que lleva la imagen de María, quien se apareció al santo indígena en 1531.

En su homilía, el papa reflexionó sobre la lectura del Evangelio de San Lucas, que recuerda que María fue "a toda prisa" a visitar a su prima Isabel después de que el ángel Gabriel le dijo que iba a concebir al Hijo de Dios a través del Espíritu Santo, y que Isabel también estaba embarazada.

"En Jesús, nacido de María, el eterno se convierte para siempre e irreversiblemente en 'Dios-con-nosotros' y camina a nuestro lado como hermano y compañero", manifestó el Santo Padre en su homilía.

"Nuestro Dios guía en todo momento la historia humana, nada queda fuera de su poder, que es ternura y amor providencial", acotó, y "nunca deja de querer por nuestro mundo, necesitado y herido, deseo de asistirlo con su compasión y misericordia".

Dios envió a María como mensajera "hace casi cinco siglos, en un momento complicado y difícil para los habitantes del nuevo mundo", dijo el Sumo Pontífice.

"Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe vino a las tierras benditas de América, presentándose como la 'madre del verdadero Dios por quienes vivimos' para consolar y atender las necesidades de los pequeños, sin excluir a nadie, para abrazarlos, como una madre cariñosa, con su presencia, amor, y consuelo", dijo. "Es nuestra madre misteriosa".

Este año, la fiesta de Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe se celebra "en un momento difícil para la humanidad. Es un tiempo amargo, lleno de estruender de guerra, creciente injusticia, hambruna, pobreza, y sufrimiento y hambre", expresó.

Y, sin embargo, Dios muestra su amor divino y nos dice "que también quiere encon -

On this third Sunday of Advent, as we rejoice that the coming of the Lord draws near, we at Catholic Charities also rejoice with the people we serve and our community partners across the Mountain State. Guided by God’s love, we – Catholic Charities staff & volunteers, neighbors in need and community-based organizations – work together to overcome obstacles and realize lasting and meaningful change.

In May 2022, “Joe’s” home near Cabell County filled with three feet of flood water, causing significant amounts of damage throughout. Flood waters destroyed Joe’s vehicle as well as his utility building and left his yard covered with debris. Joe did not have flood insurance, and no federal or state aid was available for repairs. Joe contacted Catholic Charities West Virginia (CCWVa) for assistance.

Catholic Charities West Virginia’s Disaster Services Specialist connected Joe to a variety of resources and helped him develop a plan for long-term recovery. American Baptist Disaster Relief mucked out and cleaned his home. They also removed flood-damaged floors and walls. Family and friends provided support for the clean-up as well.

Through the generosity of Catholic Charities USA, CCWVa purchased and installed a new furnace and assisted with the purchase of kitchen cabinets. The Knights of Columbus donated gift cards that Joe could use for immediate needs. The Disaster Representative for the Knights of Columbus in West Virginia delivered the cards to Joe’s home. Joe was once a member of the Knights, and he shared that he was overjoyed at the visit and the generous donation. Joe anticipates his home will be fully restored by early 2023.
