Advent is Opportunity to Get off Pedestal of Superiority, Pope Says

By Carol Glatz, Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — The season of Advent is a moment of grace to help believers stop being presumptuous and pretending to be self-sufficient, Pope Francis said.

There is only one way to begin a new life: “the way of humility — to be purified from the sense of superiority, from formalism and hypocrisy,” the pope said Dec. 4, the second Sunday of Advent.

People need to see themselves “as sinners, and to see Jesus as the savior who comes for us, not for the others, for us, just as we are, with our poverty, misery and failings, above all with our need to be raised up, forgiven and saved,” he told visitors and pilgrims gathered in St. Peter’s Square for the recitation of the Angelus prayer.

The day’s Gospel reading described St. John the Baptist’s sharp rebuke of those who were known for their duplicity and presumption, and his urgent appeal to repent.

When St. John the Baptist says, “Produce good fruit as evidence of your repentance,” the pope said, “This is a cry of love, like the cry of a father who sees his son ruining himself and says to him, ‘Don’t throw your life away!’”

If people presume they always are right, they will fail to welcome this loving invitation and miss an opportunity to begin a new life, he said.

“In essence, dear brothers and sisters, hypocrisy is the greatest danger,

A Letter from Bishop Brennan

December 9, 2022

My Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

The Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston has learned that Rev. Will-Roger Malave, a priest of the Archdiocese of Hartford, has been added to the Archdiocese of Hartford’s list of clergy with credible allegations of sexual abuse against them. Fr. Malave served in West Virginia as Administrator of St. Martin Parish in Cameron, St. Joseph Parish in Proctor, and St. Boniface Parish in Camden during the years of 1993 to 1998. The Official Catholic Directory lists Fr. Malave as retired and on leave from Hartford.

Our Diocese has not seen a criminal complaint of any sort, nor any information related to the credible allegation. We are working from information provided to us by the Archdiocese of Hartford in Connecticut. I do encourage anyone with any information pertaining to sexual abuse by Fr. Malave to first report to civil authorities and then to the Office of Safe Environment at the Chancery by calling directly at (304) 230-1504.

I encourage everyone to pray for abuse victims and survivors and hope that all investigations will proceed thoroughly and fairly.

Sincerely in Christ,

Mark E. Brennan
Bishop of Wheeling-Charleston

Catholic Charities Converts Ballroom to Overnight Shelter

WHEELING—Several individuals and organizations have spent months collaborating to find a space to provide temporary overnight shelter for adults experiencing homelessness this winter in the city of Wheeling.

That shelter has finally been found. Catholic Charities West Virginia (CCWV) will convert the grand ballroom at its administrative office into a temporary overnight shelter.

“The city of Wheeling is blessed by a community who shows tremendous mercy, love and compassion,” said Beth Zarate, CCWV’s chief executive officer and president. “As winter and cold weather approaches, providing warmth, nourishment, rest and safety for our neighbors who are experiencing homelessness is our privilege.”

In addition to providing the space in the diocesan-owned property, the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston donated $10,000 for shelter operations.

“We fasted when you were hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink, you cared for me, in prison and you visited me.’ (Matthew 25:35-36) These words from Christ in Matthew’s Gospel serve as a roadmap for how we should treat our brothers and sisters,” said Bishop Mark E. Brennan. “We are called to serve others, especially the less fortunate.”

Set to open Thursday, December 15, the temporary shelter is designed to keep individuals warm during the upcoming winter. The winter shelter will operate from 8 p.m. to 8 a.m. through mid-March or longer, depending on winter conditions.

“Winter is upon us and there is great urgency in sheltering those who are living in tents,” said Melissa Adams, city of Wheeling homeless liaison. “We are in the process of preparing the Catholic Charities space to welcome up to 60 individuals this winter season.”

Operations will fall under the newly created 501c3 nonprofit the LIFE HUB. The LIFE HUB was created as a 501c3 nonprofit organization, a program of the Wheeling Housing Authority partnering with the city of Wheeling. The goal of the LIFE HUB is to acquire and operate a spacious shelter year-round for homeless adults and families. The program will also provide a variety of services under one roof to strategically and compassionately help the homeless successfully and efficiently navigate through a variety of systems that include housing, employment, education, health and mental health, to ensure a rapid response to basic emergent needs.

“We needed to stabilize the upcoming winter first. Now that the project is moving forward in the Catholic Charities building, we can begin long-term planning of the LIFE HUB in the very near future,” explained Joyce Wolen, Wheeling Housing Authority executive director. “Other communities have adopted and implemented this model with exciting success. The key is collaboration and cooperation with the many resources in the community. We are looking forward to inviting to the table all organizations serving the homeless in our area for planning meetings,” said Wolen.

Retired Youth Services System Chief Executive Officer John Moses has joined the overnight shelter project in a temporary role to oversee day-to-day operations for the upcoming winter. Moses is being assisted by a team of familiar faces who have worked in the former Winter Freeze Shelter. He is also joined by another community familiar face – former Catholic Charities Executive Director and retired United Way Director Deacon George Smoulder.

“We are grateful for all of the individuals, organizations, foundations and faith-based community that have supported the winter shelter efforts through financial and in-kind gifts over the last several years,” said Moses. “We thank them for their continued support this year. The winter shelter would not happen without it.”

“I am proud of the work of the diocese, CCWV and local civic leaders to create this space so that our homeless community can not only be safe during the harsh winter months, but also receive other vital services they need to help them get back on their feet,” said Bishop Brennan. “I especially thank Beth Zarate, chief executive officer of CCWV, and Mark Phillips, chief operating officer of CCWV, for taking the initiative in finding a solution to shelter the homeless. This collaboration is a testament to the great work that can be accomplished when many organizations band together to ensure the dignity of our brothers and sisters in Christ.”

Donations are needed for the temporary winter shelter. Checks may be made out to the LIFE HUB and mailed to P.O. Box 2089, Wheeling, WV 26003. A temporary website landing page will be launched in the next couple of weeks to take online donations as well at lifehubwv.org. Questions may be directed to the following: Melissa Adams at (304) 234-3610 or madams@wheelingwv.gov; John Moses at (304) 215-8904 or johnmoses@comcast.net; Joyce Wolen at (304) 639-8429 or Joyce@wheelingwv-pha.org.
As you likely know, religious sisters, brothers and priests worked for years in our schools, hospitals, parishes, and service agencies without receiving (or requesting) monetary compensation. Now the great majority of them are old and sometimes sick and handicapped. Their religious orders, taking their vow of poverty seriously, did not generally save money for retirement. They assumed that there would be a steady stream of younger religious to support those who grew old.

The drastic decline in religious vocations led to a crisis in which religious orders had a large number of old and incapacitated members, and few younger ones who could both carry on their ministry and care for their elders. This led the US Bishops in 1988 to institute the Retirement Fund for Religious to help religious congregations care for their aging and infirm members.

The annual collection for the Retirement Fund for Religious will soon take place the weekend of December 10-11. I urge you to remember how much these elderly brothers and sisters of ours have contributed to the good of the Church. You may have been touched personally by their generous care for you. Now is your turn to be generous in support of them.

We all are aggrieved when we hear of clergy and religious who have abused the young, but we must remember that the overwhelming majority have served with love and integrity. Let us honor their service by offering them our own.

May the Lord Jesus, born of a poor virgin for our sake, look kindly on you and your loved ones as you observe the joyful season of Advent in preparation for the great feast of Christmas.

Sincerely in Christ,

+Mark E. Brennan
Bishop of Wheeling-Charleston

Please give to those who have given a lifetime.

Elderly religious need your help. Like those pictured, nearly 25,000 senior sisters, brothers, and religious order priests have devoted their lives to prayer and ministry—educating the young, tending the sick, aiding the needy, and more. Yet years of serving for little or no pay have left a profound shortage in retirement savings. Your support of the Retirement Fund for Religious helps furnish care, medicine, and other necessities. Please give generously.

Please give at your local parish.

More Than $115,328 Raised by the Faithful on Giving Tuesday

By Colleen Rowan
WEST VIRGINIA—On Giving Tuesday (Nov. 29) faithful across West Virginia generously gave to support the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston’s 2022 Catholic Sharing Appeal (CSA). And donations are still coming in.

“At the end of day on the 29th we had raised over $100,000 and donations have continued to be sent in from the parishes,” said Heidi Sforza, director of Annual Giving for the diocese. “Our current Giving Tuesday total is $115,328 and counting.”

Giving Tuesday, Sforza said, is a global movement that inspires people to give, collaborate, and celebrate generosity.

“For us it is a time that Catholics across the diocese come together in support of their parishes, shared ministries, Catholic education and outreach efforts across our state,” she said. “There are various ways to get involved. You can donate your time, your talents, or your treasure to support your favorite causes.”

Donations made by the faithful on Giving Tuesday were applied to parish CSA goals, Sforza said, noting that the first 50 percent of the parish goal supports Faith Formation and Evangelization efforts, Catholic education, and outreach efforts across the state.

“Parishes receive everything over 50 percent of the goal,” she said.

Each year, the CSA offers the faithful a way to support their parishes while at the same time supporting Catholic schools, outreach to the poor, evangelization, vocations, and other ministries around the state. Sforza said the 2022 appeal is currently at 87 percent of goal with almost $1.75 million pledged.

“I want to take this opportunity to thank our generous donors for the many ways they share their gifts with their parish family throughout the year.”

—Heidi Sforza, director of Annual Giving for the diocese

In his letter to the faithful on the CSA website, Bishop Mark Brennan said that the need for outreach to the young, the vulnerable and the less fortunate across West Virginia has continued to grow.

“Thanks to your generosity, we have been able to make a significant contribution toward meeting those needs, making more resources available to care for those around us, despite a declining Catholic population.”

Donations to the 2022 appeal will continue to be accepted through Dec. 31. Donations can easily be made online at csa.dwcministries.org.

We just can't say it enough... Thank you thank you thank you!

Pope Approves New Law Strengthening Oversight of Vatican-Related Entities

By Carol Glatz, Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope Francis has approved a new law strengthening the oversight of Vatican-related foundations and nonprofit organizations as well as detailing sanctions and clarifying existing norms on transparency, accountability and mandated compliance with anti-money laundering measures.

The new law, which takes effect Dec. 6, applies to all legal “persons” or entities dedicated to a specific purpose and that are connected to the Holy See or Vatican City State.

These entities include foundations, nonprofit or volunteer organizations and specific funds that are dependent on and supervised by either the Secretariat of State, the Governorate of Vatican City State, the Governorate of the Holy See, or some other Vatican-related body.

Because these entities were established by “a certain initiative of private individuals” to carry out a mission or purpose beyond the work of the Roman Curia, they enjoy “a certain administrative autonomy,” the pope wrote in an apostolic letter published “motu proprio,” on his own initiative) Dec. 6.

However, since their assets and “goods are part of the patrimony of the Apostolic See, it is necessary for them to be subject not only to the supervision of the curial institutions on which they depend, but also to the control and supervision of the economic bodies of the Roman Curia,” the pope wrote.

Specifically, the Secretariat for the Economy will supervise, inspect and verify the economic and financial activities, assets and budgets of these legal entities as well as their compliance to international standards against money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

The law specifies the Secretariat for the Economy will supervise, inspect and verify the economic and financial activities, assets and budgets of these legal entities as well as their compliance to international standards against money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

Moneyval had listed 48 known Vatican-related “legal persons” in an appendix to its 2012 report, detailing each one’s stated mission, legal representative and supervising body. Some of that information has changed since then, but among the entities listed they include: the Vatican employees’ health care assistance fund and pension fund; the “Nostra Aetate” Scholarship Foundation; the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulcher of Jerusalem; the Vatican-owned pediatric hospital’s Bambino Gesù Autonomous Foundation; Caritas Internationalis; and the Joseph Ratzinger-Benedict XVI Vatican Foundation.

WASHINGTON (CNS) — In a case examining the scope of free speech protected by the First Amendment, the Supreme Court Dec. 5 ultimately seemed to favor a broad view of free speech.

And in this case, the speech involved what a graphic designer who creates websites should not have to say.

Colorado designer Lorie Smith, who runs a web design company called 303 Creative, has said she should not be required to create wedding websites for same-sex couples based on her Christian beliefs about marriage.

Colorado state law forbids businesses from discriminating based on sexual orientation. Smith contends her First Amendment right to free speech exempts her from the law.

But she lost her case in the lower court when the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the state has a compelling interest to protect its citizens “from the harms of discrimination.”

Kristen Waggoner, the Alliance Defending Freedom attorney representing Smith, before the Supreme Court, specifically argued that companies whose work centers around expression have First Amendment protections from being compelled to say things that go against their personal beliefs.

If Smith’s case sounds familiar, that’s because it is very similar to a recent case involving a Colorado baker, for example, who refused to make a wedding cake for a same-sex couple. The baker’s refusal to make a wedding cake did not violate Colorado’s anti-discrimination law.

In its ruling, the court did not specifically deal with First Amendment protections allowing businesses to refuse clients’ requests based on the owners’ religious convictions.

A ruling in favor of the web designer in this case could give broad leeway to business owners to deny services based on their own beliefs and would trump anti-discrimination laws.

The U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, joined by the Colorado Catholic Conference and other religious groups, sided with the designer as they did with the baker five years ago.

In their amicus brief they said this case gives the court the chance to clarify free speech issues it said the court fell short of doing in the previous case, Masterpiece Cakeshop v. Colorado Civil Rights Commission.

In the current case, Smith, has not denied a service as the baker did in refusing to bake a custom cake for the same-sex couple. Smith is asking the court to weigh in before she even begins designing wedding websites, saying she has been worried that her refusal to design a same-sex wedding website would violate Colorado’s public accommodations law.

Some of the justices brought up hypothetical cases that could come up if they ruled in the state’s favor asking Colorado Solicitor General Eric Olson if people could be forced to write news releases for the Church of Scientology or a Black Santa actor could be forced to pose with a child in a Ku Klux Klan outfit — incidents that Olson said would not apply under the state’s law.

Conversely, Justice Sonia Sotomayor asked if a ruling in favor of the designer would mean web designers could refuse to work with inter racial couples or disabled couples.

A majority of the justices seemed willing to carve out narrow exemptions to discrimination laws.

Justice Clarence Thomas emphasized that this case was distinct from other public accommodations cases because of the speech aspect, pointing out: “This is not a hotel, this is not a restaurant, this is not a riverboat or a train.”

Similarly, Justice Brett Kavanaugh asked about how one would determine even within the wedding industry what types of services count as speech.

In response, Waggoner told the court she wouldn’t be in front of them today representing a caterer, for example, but she would likely represent a custom wedding cake designer, bringing the previous court case to mind.

The USCCB’s brief said there is a “pressing need for the court to clarify how the compelled speech doctrine applies to wedding vendor cases and other disputes.” It urged the justices to do what they have done in the past: “Apply the Free Speech Clause to protect religious speech, thereby strengthening liberty not just for the religious but for all society.”

It also said the current case “provides an appropriate and especially important opportunity to invoke free speech protections again to address the ongoing tensions in wedding-vendor cases and in the current cultural context more broadly” and implored the court to “protect individuals from compelled speech and to provide space in the public square for minority voices.”

Other groups that filed briefs on behalf of the wedding vendor included Catholicvote.org, the Thomas More Society, the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights and the Becket Fund.

DignityUSA, an unofficial Catholic support group for gay Catholics and their families, and New Ways Ministry, a Catholic pastoral outreach to LGBTQ people and their families, joined a brief filed by 30 religious and civil rights groups opposing the graphic artist’s case.

“Carving out this broad exemption would allow public businesses to legally exclude customers based on their identities,” the brief said, adding that “instead of safeguarding every citizen’s right to buy goods and services from businesses open to the public, ” the proposed exemption “would further hurt the very people these civil rights laws were designed to protect.”

Twenty states supported Smith in friend of the court briefs. They say that they have public accommodation laws on the books, but their laws exempt those businesspeople who make their living creating custom art. Twenty-two states support Colorado and have similar laws in place protecting people from discrimination, which is also backed by the Justice Department.

A decision in the case is expected in late June.

Elkin’s St. Brendan Parish to Celebrate 125th Anniversary

ELKINS—St. Brendan Parish will be celebrating its 125th anniversary on Dec. 18. Parishioners, both current and former, and former pastors have been invited to mark its founding in March of 1897.

The event will begin at noon in the parish hall. Parishioners are asked to bring a side dish. The entrée, drinks, and dessert will be provided.

In 1893, Father Haimann, the pastor of St. Thomas Parish in Thomas, traveled to Elkins once a month to celebrate Eucharist for the newly begun mission parish. From the beginning, he spoke of erecting a church building for the mission of Elkins. In 1896, a parcel of land at the corner of Randolph Ave. and Park St. was acquired for $300 and by March of 1897, a wooden Catholic church building was constructed.

At that time, the first pastor in Elkins, Father John J. Daly, was assigned and the church became a parish instead of a mission. In October 1900, the bishop dedicated the church under the name and patronage of St. Brendan. The name Brendan was an appropriate name for the parish situated in the midst of such beautiful mountains, since the name means, “A Dweller in The Hills”. A small one-room Catholic school was started in September 1907 with an enrollment of sixty-five children. A larger school building was constructed in September 1920. In 1921, a convent was added to house the nuns who taught at St. Brendan School; both of which ultimately closed in the late 1960s due to declining enrollment and rising costs.

By 1928, the original wooden church was razed and a new and larger masonry church was constructed on the original church’s site. Property for the St. Brendan Cemetery was purchased south of Elkins on the road to Beverly. In the years that followed, a number of improvements to the new church were made, including new pews and an organ.

Changes rooted in the Second Vatican Council during the 1980s required a need to renovate places of worship. When the estimated cost of renovation reached $500,000, the current pastor asked the parish to vote on whether to proceed with the renovation of the existing church or build a new church on eight acres...

adjacent to the cemetery on the Beverly Pike.

On September 25, 1995, the parish took its first major step in building its new parish home. Parishioners joined in an official groundbreaking ceremony on the building site. During the next four years, parish members and the Elkins community watched the new parish home being built. Throughout the building of the new parish home, parishioners took part in tours during each new phase of the construction.

After the parish moved to the new church building, the old building was sold, renovated, and reopened as the Randolph County Community Arts Center in 2001. The beautiful stained-glass windows, large crucifix, and Stations of the Cross plaques had been removed and incorporated into the design of the new church.

On October 3, 1999, Bishop Bernard W. Schmitt joined with twenty-five ordained priests of the diocese and close to seven hundred parishioners and visitors, to dedicate the new St. Brendan Parish home. Shortly after the dedication, St. Brendan’s became the home for a cluster of parishes that included St. Patrick Parish in Coalton, Resurrection Mission in Belington (now closed), and St. John Bosco Parish in Huttonsville.

During its 125-year history, St. Brendan Parish has been led by 14 pastors who have been assisted by 38 sisters and eight deacons. Currently, the parish is led by Father James E. O’Connor, pastor. Father O’Connor is assisted by Deacon John Sarraga, permanent deacon at St. Brendan’s, and Deacon Raymond Goodwin, permanent deacon and director for Religious Education at St. Brendan’s.

One hundred and twenty-five years after its founding, St. Brendan Parish continues to thrive, grow, and conduct its mission “as stewards of God’s creation, striving to work for the greater honor and glory of God, in its families and community.”

Papa: Adviento presenta oportunidad para dejar de sentirse superior

Por Carol Glatz, Catholic News Service

CIUDAD DEL VATICANO (CNS) — La temporada de Adviento es un momento de gracia para ayudar a los creyentes a dejar de ser presuntuosos y pretender ser autosuficientes, dijo el papa Francisco.

Sólo hay una forma de comenzar una nueva vida: “la forma de la humildad: purificar el sentido de superioridad, del formalismo y la hipocresía”, dijo el papa el 4 de diciembre, segundo domingo de Adviento.

Las personas necesitan verse “pecadoras, y ver a Jesús como el salvador que viene por nosotros, no por los demás, por nosotros, tal como somos, con nuestras pobrezas, miserias y defectos, sobre todo con nuestra necesidad de ser resucitados, perdonado y salvados”, dijo a los visitantes y peregrinos reunidos en la Plaza de San Pedro para el rezo del Ángelus.

La lectura del Evangelio del día describió la severa reprensión de San Juan Bautista a aquellos que eran conocidos por su duplicidad y presunción, y su llamado urgente al arrepentimiento.

Cuando San Juan Bautista dice: “Produce buenos frutos como prueba de tu arrepentimiento”, el papa dijo: “Este es un grito de amor, como el grito de un padre que ve a su hijo arruinándose y le dice: ‘No ¡No desperdicies tu vida!’.”

“Si las personas suponen que siempre tienen razón, no aceptarán esta amorosa inviación y perderán la oportunidad de comer gracia para ayudar a los creyentes a dejar de ser presuntuosos y pretender ser autosuficientes, dijo el papa. “Requiere bajarse del pedestal y sumergirse en el agua del arrepentimiento”.

“El Adviento es un momento de gracia para quitaros las máscaras –cada uno de nosotros las tenemos- y poneros en fila con los humildes, para liberarnos de la presunción de la creencia de ser autosuficientes, para ir a confesar nuestros pecados, los ocultos, y acoger el perdón de Dios, pedir perdón a aquellos a quienes hemos ofendido”, dijo.

“ Así es como se comienza una nueva vida”, dijo.

“En el fondo, queridos hermanos y hermanas, la hipocresía es el mayor peligro, porque puede arruinar incluso las realidades más sagradas. La hipocresía es un peligro grave. Por eso el Bautista —como lo sería después Jesús— es duro con los hipócritas”, dijo el papa.

“Es importante acoger a Dios con humildad, dijo, “no con bravura: ‘Somos fuertes, somos grandes personas!’”.

“El Adviento es un momento de gracia para quitaros las máscaras –cada uno de nosotros las tenemos- y poneros en fila con los humildes, para liberarnos de la presunción de la creencia de ser autosuficientes, para ir a confesar nuestros pecados, los ocultos, y acoger el perdón de Dios, pedir perdón a aquellos a quienes hemos ofendido”, dijo.

“ Así es como se comienza una nueva vida”, dijo.

“CALL THE RESTORATION COMPANY THE MOUNTAINEERS CALL”
Waiting is not an easy process for any of us. Through patience and great expectation, our waiting becomes more bearable. In our Gospel, John the Baptist cries out that we prepare the way for Christ to be born again among us.

As we walk alongside people we serve, we are often waiting with them. Lifting oneself or one’s family out of poverty is not a fast or easy process. Through strong relationship building and companionship, we work with our clients to set goals and eliminate barriers – barriers like lack of child care, unreliable transportation, needing an ID, or funds to buy job training materials.

Through our case management program, we work with clients to understand the underlying cause of need, and we provide resources to help. Whether it is patients being discharged from hospitals, adult learners in recovery from substance use disorder, or the pregnant mom needing help; case management is a journey of hope and transformation.

As we continue our Advent journey, we wait in joyful hope for the coming of our Lord.
