Pope Francis Calls for Solidarity with Turkey, Syria after Earthquakes

By Justin McLellan

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope Francis urged all people to be in solidarity with the regions of Turkey and Syria struck by two powerful earthquakes early Feb. 6 and that are “in part already martyred by a long war.”

The two earthquakes, which both measured above 7.0 magnitude according to the United States Geological Survey, struck southern Turkey and impacted large swathes of neighboring Syria. The death toll has climbed to over 20,000.

Pope Francis prayed for the thousands of dead and wounded at his general audience Feb. 8 and expressed his closeness to the victims, their families “and all who suffer from this devastating calamity.” The pope also thanked aid workers responding to the crisis.

Hundreds of foreign engineers, medical personnel and rescue workers have been sent to Turkey and Syria to search for people trapped under wreckage and aid the thousands without shelter in freezing winter conditions.

Special Collection on Ash Wednesday to Support Earthquake Relief Efforts

On February 6, a 7.8 magnitude earthquake devastated large areas of southern Turkey and northwest Syria. The death toll has surpassed 20,000 and continues to climb. Thousands of people have been injured and many are trapped beneath the rubble. The earthquake is the worst to strike Turkey this century. Within the subsequent 24 hours, the region experienced multiple aftershocks and a second 7.5 magnitude quake.

Across affected areas, apartment buildings and schools have been leveled. Telecommunications are disrupted, preventing families from contacting and accounting for missing loved ones. In Syria, displaced people are seeking shelter in schools and community centers in areas already devastated by years of war. Across southern Turkey, roads are closed, airport transportation is impaired and hospitals have been declared unusable.

Catholic Relief Services is supporting local partners in their efforts to provide urgent relief and a framework for long-term recovery. CRS has partnerships with Caritas Turkey and Caritas Syria, as well as other local partners. To support the efforts of these organizations, Bishop Mark Brennan has approved a special collection to be held on Ash Wednesday, February 22, 2023, and for collection baskets to remain available for the collection throughout the first Sunday of Lent. Bishop Brennan appreciates your generosity this past summer to those affected by the severe storms and flooding in Eastern Kentucky and Southern West Virginia. But he feels impelled once again to ask you to do what you can to help those affected by this most recent disaster.

All funds collected in the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston will be given to Catholic Relief Services with the special designation for use in the Turkey/Syria Earthquake Recovery Effort.

Checks can be made out to your respective parish with “Disaster Relief” on the memo line. Donations can also be made on the diocesan website at https://dwc.org/disaster-relief/.

As we hold the victims and first responders in our prayers during these critical days, let us also spend time in prayer and discernment as we prepare for this upcoming collection. Let us come together now to support our brothers and sisters in Christ who are suffering this horrible loss.

“Let us pray together so that these our brothers and sisters can go forth in the face of this tragedy, and let us ask Our Lady to protect them,” Pope Francis said. He then led the recitation of the Hail Mary with the thousands of visitors and pilgrims gathered for his general audience.

Hours after the earthquake Feb. 6, Pope Francis sent two telegrams to Turkey and Syria to express his spiritual closeness to those affected.

A variety of Catholic charitable and aid organizations are part of the relief efforts. Caritas Internationalis, the umbrella organization of national Catholic charities, immediately launched a fundraising campaign and a request for donations of winter clothing especially for infants and young children. The charity has been active in Turkey since 1991 and in Syria since 2011, primarily providing aid to refugees.

Speaking to the L’Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, Bishop Paolo Bizzeti, apostolic vicar of Anatolia, said that the earthquakes were “a tragedy within a tragedy,” since the region is already “full of refugees from various countries who have fled terrible situations.”

While aid is being sent through Caritas Turkey, he said, “it is difficult to receive the aid necessary given the state of the roads.” Bishop Bizzeti added that the aid must be properly “spaced out” to ensure it lasts the duration of the relief efforts.

Aid to the Church in Need, a pontifical foundation that provides aid to Catholic communities worldwide, is supporting reparation projects in Aleppo, Syria, to allow people to return to their homes. The charity said an estimated 7,500 people slept in Aleppo’s churches, convents and other locations the night of Feb. 7. The Pontifical Mission Societies in the United States has also created a fund to support Catholic dioceses and partner organizations in Turkey and Syria.

Jesuit Father Tony O’Briordan arrived in Aleppo Feb. 7 to lead Jesuit Refugee Service’s response to the crisis. In a statement, he said JRS’ priority is to reopen its health clinic in Aleppo and help protect people against the cold. The Jesuits have also opened their building in Aziziyê to host people without shelter.

The Middle East Council of Churches is calling for aid to be sent to the region, and for sanctions to be lifted on Syria to allow for access of relief materials.

The Catholic Near East Welfare Association launched an emergency campaign to shelter survivors and provide bedding, food, medicines, nursing formula, diapers and clothing to more than 2,000 families for three months in the Aleppo and Hama areas of northern Syria.

Catholic Relief Services, the overseas aid agency of the Catholic Church in the United States, was collecting funds to assist its local partners, Caritas Turkey and Caritas Syria, particularly in Aleppo and Lattakia, Syria, where extensive damage has been reported.

Biden Reiterates Call to Codify Roe v. Wade in State of the Union Address

By Kate Scanlon

WASHINGTON (OSV News) — President Joe Biden called the state of the union “strong,” in his second such address Feb. 7, calling for national unity even as he argued for some Democratic priorities including reiterating his call to codify Roe v. Wade.

Biden’s 2023 State of the Union was his first to a divided Congress, as Republicans began their slim House majority in January, and his first to a full chamber, as the Senate had reduced seating capacity for several years due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Biden called on Congress to codify Roe v. Wade “to protect every woman’s constitutional right to choose.” The Supreme Court’s ruling in Dobbs v. Jackson Women’s Health Organization in June 2022 overturned the high court’s previous abortion-related precedents in Roe v. Wade and Planned Parenthood v. Casey.

The president also said he would veto any effort to restrict the procedure at a federal level, as some states have done since the Dobbs decision.

“Make no mistake; if Congress passes a national abortion ban, I will veto it,” Biden said.

The proposal was issued by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the Department of Labor and the Department of the Treasury, and aims to end Trump-era rules giving employers more ability to opt out of providing contraceptive coverage in their employee health plans.

At times conciliatory and at others boisterous, Biden, a Catholic Democrat, touted job growth and a bipartisan infrastructure package passed during the first part of his term, while outlining his remaining agenda items including banning assault rifles, restoring the expired child tax credit and passing immigration reform.

Celebrating the infrastructure law, Biden joked that Republicans who voted against it could still attend groundbreaking ceremonies on new bridges in their districts, prompting laughter from those who supported the bill. In his address to a joint session of Congress at the Capitol, Biden recognized congressional leadership, quipping to House Speaker Kevin McCarthy, R-Calif., “I don’t want to ruin your reputation, but I look forward to working with you.”

But the address was marked by tense moments, as Biden took swipes at some Republicans he said wanted to cut Social Security and Medicare benefits, and as Republicans turned to impeach the president during portions of his speech. Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene, R-Ga., was heard in the chamber calling Biden a liar. At another time, Rep. Andy Ogles, R-Tenn., yelled “your fault” while Biden discussed drug overdose deaths.

Biden struck a populist tone at times, calling for legislation to ban so-called junk fees, “those hidden surcharges too many businesses use to make you pay more,” or lowering the price of prescription drugs.

The U.S. Constitution requires the president to “from time to time give to the Congress Information of the State of the Union, and recommend to their Consideration such Measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient.”

“Most Americans simply want to live their lives in freedom and peace, but we are under attack in a left-wing culture war and in the government,” Biden said.

But now HHS is “proposing to amend them yet again. It is past time for HHS to leave well enough alone in this regard,” the cardinal said in a statement released by the USCCB Jan. 30. On Feb. 2, HHS and the Labor and Treasury departments published their proposed rule in the Federal Register, https://www.federalregister.gov. Publication of the rule opened a 60-day comment period for the public to weigh in. (The direct link for submitting a comment is: https://bit.ly/3x4DtYE.)

“These proposed rules would amend regulations regarding coverage of certain preventive services under the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act,” which in general requires group or individual health insurance plans “to cover certain contraceptive services without cost sharing,” HHS said in its summary.

“Current regulations include exemptions and optional accommodations for entities and individuals with religious or moral objections to coverage of contraceptive services,” it said, adding that under the proposed changes, “those exemptions are rescinded.”

The Biden administration said the new rules are necessary to make sure women have access to “contraceptive services” in the aftermath of the U.S. Supreme Court’s June 2022 ruling in Dobbs v. Jackson Women’s Health Organization. The ruling overturned the court’s 1973 Roe v. Wade decision that legalized abortion nationwide. With Dobbs, the abortion issue returns to the states.

“We regret that it is necessary to revisit this matter and will file more thorough comments with HHS at the appropriate time,” Cardinal Dolan said.

The Obama administration first implemented the contraceptive mandate as part of the Affordable Care Act in 2012 to force employers to provide their employees with contraceptive coverage through their health plans or face fines.

One of the most celebrated court challenges to this mandate was the litigation brought against the mandate by the Little Sisters of the Poor on the grounds that it violated the religious freedom rights of any Catholic entity that upholds the church teaching against birth control, abortion and sterilization.

Some contraceptives covered by the mandate, they argued, are abortifacients, or abortion-inducing drugs, and some facilitate sterilizations.

The religious order, which cares for the elderly poor in facilities all over the country, previously prevailed at the U.S. Supreme Court in July 2020, though the case could come back to the Supreme Court again, according to the Washington-based Becket law firm that has represented the Little Sisters in court.

African Americans’ ‘Strength of Character’

By Richard Szczepanowski

WASHINGTON (OSV News) — Celebrating a Feb. 5 Mass in honor of Black History Month, Washington Cardinal Wilton D. Gregory urged “ordinary people of color” to “vastly improve our world with an understanding of the strength of character that resides within the souls of our people.”

Referring to the day’s Gospel reading from Matthew (5:13-16), in which Jesus refers to his disciples as the salt of the earth and the light of the world, Cardinal Gregory said, “We are chosen by none other than the Lord, the light of the world himself; we have no choice but to be an example to the world.

“Many have suffered martyrdom as the price of their witness and those who do become salt and light may become the subject of ridicule,” the cardinal said. “But we need ordinary faith-filled people like yourselves to allow your lights to shine — however small ... to illuminate the darkness of this world.

He reminded those at the Mass that “you are exactly the ones Christ called to be light in the world — not because of the great things you have done, but the generous things that you do.”

“Our task — not just not just in African American Month, but every day! — is to respond in generous and loving ways to the needs of this world,” Cardinal Gregory said. “That’s your job. It comes from none other than Christ himself. You are the salt of the earth, you are the light of the world. There is no getting around it.”

Cardinal Gregory was the principal celebrant of the annual Mass, which he called a “rousing and wonderful celebration.” It was offered at Holy Comforter-St. Cyprian Church in Washington and sponsored by the Archdiocese of Washington’s Office of Cultural Diversity and Outreach.

Several hundred people attended the Mass, which Cardinal Gregory said was “our largest gathering for Black History Month in a couple of years.”

Concelebrants included Washington Auxiliary Bishop Roy E. Campbell Jr.; Msgr. Charles Pope, pastor of Holy Comforter-Saint Cyprian Parish; Father Michael Bryant, the longtime Catholic chaplain at the D.C. Detention Center; Franciscan Father Lalo Jara, program director of the archdiocese’s Office of Cultural Diversity and Outreach; Father Robert Boxie, Catholic chaplain at Howard University; and Father Patrick Aboagye, who is in residence at Holy Comforter-St. Cyprian Parish.

“They are here out of affection and great devotion to the African American community,” Cardinal Gregory said of the bishop and priests concelebrating the Mass.

Black History Month traces its roots to 1926 when noted historian Carter G. Woodson and the Rev. Jesse E. Moorland established Negro History Week to highlight the achievements of African Americans and others of African descent. The second week of February was chosen to coincide with the birthdays of President Abraham Lincoln and abolitionist and author Frederick Douglass.

By the 1960s, Negro History Week had expanded to Black History Month on college campuses across the country. In 1976, President Gerald Ford officially recognized February as Black History Month to “honor the too-often neglected accomplishments of Black Americans in every area of endeavor throughout our history.”

“African American History Month is not just about the past. It’s not just about the great things that were done 50 years ago, 100 years ago, 200 years ago,” Cardinal Gregory said. “It’s about the future and what light will we shed to a world that is too gloomy and too covered with shadows.”

Cardinal Gregory pointed out that there is a movement in the U.S. Congress to remove an exemption to the 13th Amendment to the Constitution that still exists that says if any former slaves are caught and convicted of a crime, they could be put back into slavery.

Urging the faithful to work for the removal of that exemption, Cardinal Gregory said, “None of us should ever be forced, no matter what we have done, back into slavery — not just slavery with chains, but slavery of sin, slavery of fear, slavery of hatred.”

“We are called to be free men and women,” he stressed.

During the Mass, prayers also were offered for six African American Catholics who are candidates for sainthood candidacy.

Three of the six have the title of “Venerable”:

Father Augustus Tolton, the first publicly known Black Catholic priest in the United States; Sister Henriette Delille, who founded the Congregation of the Sisters of the Holy Family; and Pierre Toussaint, a formerly enslaved philanthropist who supported many Catholic charitable works. And three have the title “Servant of God”: Mother Mary Lange, the foundress and first superior general of the Oblate Sisters of Providence; Julia Greeley, who after her emancipation from enslavement joined the Secular Franciscan Order and promoted devotion to the Sacred Heart of Jesus; and Sister Thea Bowman, a Franciscan Sisters of Perpetual Adoration, who was a noted educator and evangelist. Raised in a Methodist home, she became a Catholic at age 9 with her Methodist parents’ permission.

The “Servant of God” title is given to a sainthood candidate when a canonization cause is of-officially opened. “Venerable” is the declaration of the person’s heroic virtues. In general, one miracle attributed to the intercession of a sainthood candidate is needed for beatification and a second such miracle is needed for canonization.

“May their extraordinary lives of faith, hope and love soon be recognized by the universal church so that this, and subsequent generations may be inspired to imitate their heroic virtue,” the congregation prayed.

Lot of positive changes took place this year at St. Joseph the Worker Grade School in Weirton. One of the biggest changes was the decision to incorporate a Jr. High setting in which the 7th and 8th graders would now be part of Madonna High School. The reason this change was so important to Sophia was this would be her last year at St. Joseph the Worker. This also meant that her 6th grade class would now be the oldest grade within the school, and with that Sophia felt that it was very important she work to be a positive role model for the younger kids.

One thing Sophia felt there would always be a need for is more kindness—not only in the 6th grade classroom but throughout the school. Sophia recognized through her own personal experience and experiences shared by others that sometimes people go through things in their life that we know nothing about. Also, through experience Sophia learned that a little kindness will go a long way in helping to brighten the darkest of days.

In September Sophia began working with the 6th grade teacher at St. Joseph the Worker and some other students to design posters focusing on the topic of bullying. Sophia worked with the other students that were interested in posting these posters in the hall to hopefully spread the message to other students. One day while researching resources on bullying and kindness with the help of her family, Sophia came across a social media post which held information on a kindness contest. This contest was focused around exactly what Sophia’s heart was working to do—spread kindness. This contest was sponsored by a 100% volunteer run organization called Kindness Grows Here. This is an organization that believes we must foster kindness in the next generation to make our world a better place. This contest hit home for Sophia and she worked to send in her goal of a Kindness Club at St. Joseph the Worker. If Sophia would be lucky enough to win the contest she would receive a grant to work to meet her goal—kindness in the school that would spill over into the community.

In December Sophia was chosen as the only student in the State of West Virginia to win the contest and a grant was awarded to start a Kindness Club at her school. Sophia, a sixth grader at St. Joseph the Worker Grade School in Weirton, was the only student in West Virginia to win the Kindness Grows Here Contest. A grant was awarded to start a Kindness Club at her school.

Inside That Matters” and “Sprinkled With Kindness Theme into each day of Catholic Schools Week. This was a great end to the first month of spreading kindness within the school and community. Two days are designated to collecting donations for the community. One day students will be encouraged under Father Dennis Schuelken’s words of encouragement “Read a book change the world.” To donate a used book to the Little Library located on Colliers Way. Another day the children will be encouraged to donate an item to the Animal Blessing Box downtown by Weirton Fire Department. During the January 16 Kindness Club meeting the members worked to design boxes that were to be placed in the school to collect the donations.

The vision Sophia has for the Kindness Club is that she will continue to run this club throughout her Jr. High and High School career at Madonna High School. This will enable her the ability to continue to work hand in hand with St. Joseph the Worker staff and future students in ways that will enable kindness to spill over into the children’s family and the surrounding community. The possibilities are endless in ways to keep spreading kindness and Sophia is blessed to be part of a supportive administration and teaching staff at St. Joseph the Worker who have been on board since day one ensuring the Kindness Club will become a rewarding experience for everyone who experiences the kindness it will touch their lives with.

Thanks to teaching staff families can tune into the St. Joseph the Worker School Social Media site to experience what the Kindness Club is working to make happen.

Some future goals Sophia has is a Kindness Newsletter spotlighting all the kind things the Kindness Club has worked to do each month and a Kindness Spotlight, where individuals who the staff have felt went above and beyond spreading kindness in some way can be recognized. Sophia also has a goal of connecting the Kindness Club to other providers in the area as outreach to work with them to assist in needs the community has.

Sophia’s favorite kindness quote is “In a world where you can be anything, be kind.” — Jennifer Dukes Lee

WVICU Estimates Wheeling University’s Economic Impact in the Region at More Than $38 Million Annually

WHEELING—Wheeling University not only makes a difference in the lives of the students it educates, the institution is estimated to have a financial impact of nearly $38.4 million on West Virginia’s regional economy.

A study conducted by the West Virginia Independent Colleges and Universities (WVICU) shows the extensive contributions Wheeling and other independent institutions have on the regional economies across the Mountain State. The organization looked at institutional and financial data from the 2021-22 fiscal year and used the IMPLAN® economic impact modeling system to assess and quantify the economic effect Wheeling makes on the local economy.

“Wheeling University’s faculty and staff are committed to our mission and the success of our students, but it is important to remember that this institution also plays a vital role in both the state and regional economies,” said University President Ginny R. Favede. “Wheeling University’s operations and the economic activity generated by our faculty, staff and students touch nearly every aspect of our local economy, including education, hospitality, childcare, healthcare, construction, maintenance and retail. We have always known that this university was important to the Wheeling economy and this study demonstrates the powerful impact our students, employees and the institution make as a whole.”

According to the WVICU report, Wheeling’s total payroll compensation is $6,236,527, with the direct impact calculated for the University totaling $21.6 million. The study estimates that another $11.7 million will also be created through the region as a result of indirect industry-specific spending. Additionally, the WVICU estimates that another $5 million is fused into the economy from induced income from students, household labor income and government spending in the supply chain for goods and services.

“Economic impact measures the significance of an organization in the regional economy and Wheeling University is clearly a major contributor. The long-term impact of our continued dedication to our local community is impossible to put into simple numbers. Hometown pride may not be a traditional economic indicator, but it certainly translates into positive economic results,” Favede added.

Wheeling Mayor Glenn Elliott agrees the University is a key contributor to the local economy.

“When you think of all the benefits that having a higher education institution like Wheeling University brings to a community, it is easy to overlook the raw economic impact in its own right. But $38 million is a very significant number for our local economy that should not be underestimated,” said Elliott.

The report, Favede explained, reveals the University supports and sustains more than 250 jobs locally – through direct employment at the University and through indirect jobs created by vendors, contractors and local labor which perform construction and renovations on the campus. Additionally, she noted, the campus community and visitors impact job creation at area restaurants, hotels and retail establishments, through their support of these local businesses.

What this report does not calculate is ‘human capital’ Wheeling educates each year – well-educated students grounded in Catholic, Ignatian values.

Favede said, “Wheeling University prides itself on outstanding academics, strong athletic programs and an exceptional sense of community and belonging. This University has a mission to educate men and women to be intelligent, moral leaders who will champion the Catholic values of faith, peace and justice. Many of these young men and women stay in the region once they graduate – becoming important contributors at our hospitals, banks, schools and communities. Their impact is immeasurable,” Favede added.

The head of Regional Economic Development Partnership agrees the University makes a big impact in the local area.

“As a regional economic development organization, the importance of our higher education institutions in both retaining and attracting business and industry is critical to our collective success. Wheeling University, in addition to our other private college, state university and community college, play a major factor in demonstrating the current and potential level of professional workforce we can provide throughout northern West Virginia,” said Josh Jefferson, president of the Regional Economic Development Partnership.

Wheeling University remains the only campus-based, Catholic institution of higher education in West Virginia. According to the Association of Catholic Colleges and Universities (ACCU), Wheeling is one of 12 diocesan-sponsored universities in the United States.

El Papa Francisco pide solidaridad con Turquía y Siria tras terremotos

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — El Papa Francisco instó a todas las personas a ser solidarias con las regiones de Turquía y Siria golpeadas por dos terremotos el 6 de febrero y que "en parte ya están martirizadas por una larga guerra".

Los dos terremotos, los cuales midieron más de 7.0 de magnitud según el Servicio Geológico de los Estados Unidos, golpearon el sur de Turquía e impactaron grandes franjas de la vecina Siria. Hasta el mediodía del 8 de febrero, hora local, el número de muertos había superado los 20,000 y se esperaba que el número de muertos aumentara aún más a medida que los equipos de rescate continuaban buscando entre los escombros de los edificios derrumbados.

El Papa Francisco oró por los miles de muertos y heridos en su audiencia general del 8 de febrero y expresó su cercanía con las víctimas, sus familias "y todos los que sufren por esta calamidad devastadora". El papa también agradeció a los trabajadores humanitarios que respondieron "necesidad y solidaridad". En declaraciones al diario vaticano L'Osservatore Romano, el Obispo Paolo Bizzeti, vicario apostólico de Antioquia, dijo que los terremotos fueron "una tragedia dentro de una tragedia", ya que la región ya está "llena de refugiados de varios países que han huido terriblemente situaciones".

Si bien se envía ayuda a través de Caritas Turquía, y siria para expresar su cercanía espiritual a los afectados.

Promoting the Dignity of Ukrainian Newcomers with Affordable Legal Expertise

By Renee Corbett, CCWVa Refugee Outreach Worker

The Catholic Charities West Virginia (CCWVa) Immigration Services program has a long history of providing high quality, affordable immigration legal services to West Virginia residents.

The majority of our state’s newest residents are arriving from Ukraine via the Uniting for Ukraine (U4U) program. The U4U program was established in April 2022 by the Department of Homeland Security in response to Russia’s invasion of Ukraine. This program allows individuals in the United States to sponsor Ukrainians to stay in the United States for a two-year temporary period.

The CCWVa Refugee Resettlement program has been working closely with many West Virginia-based sponsors and the new Ukrainian arrivals to support their resettlement in West Virginia. To date we have provided resettlement support to 42 Ukrainians in West Virginia.

Due to the nature of their temporary immigration status, many Ukrainian newcomers have expressed concerned about: “What next?”

To support the Ukrainian newcomers in West Virginia with answering this question, CCWVa hosted a webinar to introduce Ukrainians to the various next-step immigration options. The webinar was presented by four immigration attorneys: Kellie Rogers and Nicole Annan from CCWVa, Katy Lewis from Mountain State Justice, and Paul Saluja from Saluja Law.

The 90-minute webinar was presented in English and interpreted in Ukrainian, and covered topics related to asylum, family-based immigration applications, employment-based immigration applications, and other humanitarian options, such as victim of trafficking and victim of crime applications.

These four attorneys also offered free individualized consultations to each Ukrainian family to discuss their family’s specific options.

CCWVa is proud to be able to embrace the Gospel’s teaching of welcoming the stranger by providing resettlement support and legal expertise to many of West Virginia’s newest arrivals.

Father Asantha Jude Perera, TOR, pastor of St. Anthony Parish in Follansbee, blesses throats on the Feast of St. Blaise, Feb. 3. As priests blessed the faithful’s throats around the world, they prayed: “Through the intercession of St. Blaise, bishop and martyr, may you be healed from every disease and illness of the throat.”
