U.S. Bishops Urge Congress to Address Gun Violence

By Carol Zimmermann, Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — In response to the multiple mass shootings in recent weeks, the chairmen of four U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops’ committees sent a letter to Congress urging lawmakers to “stop the massacres of innocent lives.”

“We urge all members of Congress to reflect on the compassion all of you undoubtedly feel in light of these tragic events and be moved to action because of it,” the bishops wrote in a June 3 letter.

They said finding a way to stop ongoing acts violence as demonstrated in Uvalde, Texas, and Buffalo, New York, to name just a few examples, requires a broad response that examines “mental health, the state of families, the valuation of life, the influence of entertainment and gaming industries, bullying and the availability of firearms.”

And although they see a need for broad reform, they focused on guns in particular, stressing that “among the many steps toward addressing this endemic of violence is the passage of reasonable gun control measures.”

The letter was signed by Archbishop Paul S. Coakley of Oklahoma City, chairman of the Committee on Domestic Justice and Human Development; Archbishop Salvatore J. Cordileone of San Francisco, chairman of the Committee on Laity, Marriage, Family Life and Catholic Education; and Bishop Thomas A. Daly of Sacramento, chairman of the Committee on Domestic Justice and Human Development.

These committee leaders noted that even though work needs to be done to address the root causes of violence, there were practical steps Congress could take right now by supporting legislation to expand background checks for gun sales.

They also cited the passion for gun control, noting that in the 10 years since the mass shooting at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Connecticut, “very little has been done by Congress to regulate these weapons and prevent another catastrophe.”

“We urgently call on members of Congress to work together in a bipartisan fashion to make these horrific attacks less likely to happen again,” they wrote.

The bishops said the USCCB has long supported measures to address gun violence and continues to do so.

Looking at specific measures, they said they support a total ban on assault weapons and limitations on civilian access to high-capacity weapons and ammunition magazines. They also cited their support for universal background checks for all gun purchases.

“We ask that Congress pass a federal law to criminalize gun trafficking,” the bishops added, saying this was particularly important because “the United States ‘not only suffers from domestic gun violence but is a major international exporter of weapons.’”

The church leaders also said they support proposals for a more appropriate minimum age for gun ownership and a ban on bump stocks — additional gun parts which dramatically increase the guns’ rate of firing.

They pointed out that while “strengthened gun laws could reduce mass-casualty events, not even the most effective gun laws, by themselves, will suffice to address the roots of these violent attacks in our country” and stressed the need for improved mental health care access and resources as well as “peacebuilding in our communities through restorative justice models.”

“Bipartisanship is never more important than when it is required to protect life and end the culture of death. We invite you to support these measures and to be part of building up the culture of life that is so needed in our society, not just as elected officials but as mothers and fathers, grandparents, and aunts and uncles of little children or teachers whom you expect to return home safely today,” they wrote.

The bishops’ letter was sent to Congress the day after President Joe Biden addressed the nation from the White House June 2, pleasing with Congress to pass what he described as “rational, commonsense measures” to curb gun violence. He said it was time to put an end to the “carnage” and loss of American lives.

The president called for the ban on assault weapons and high-capacity magazines to be reinstated and said the minimum purchasing age for semi-automatic weapons should be raised from 18 to 21.

He also called for a strengthening of background checks and red-flag laws aimed at keeping guns away from those with mental illness. He also urged a repeal of the immunity that shields gun manufacturers from liability.

While Biden was addressing the nation, the U.S. House Judiciary Committee passed a gun control package following heated discussion. The legislation, called Protecting Our Kids Act, includes eight bills related to gun control, expected to be on the House floor the week of June 6.

The measure would raise the age of purchasing semi-automatic rifles from 18 to 21, create new requirements for storing guns in a home with children, prevent gun trafficking, require firearms to be traceable and regulate bump stocks.

It was expected to pass in the House but not the divided Senate, where it needs 60 votes.

Republicans in Congress have criticized Democrats for rushing to pass gun legislation and have blamed recent mass shootings on mental health issues and an overall lack of family values.

Incredible Success Achieved by the Class of 2022

By Colleen Rowan

The Class of 2022 from the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston’s six Catholic high schools in West Virginia have achieved incredible success. Each school—Central Catholic High School in Wheeling, Charleston Catholic High School; Madonna High School in Weirton; Notre Dame High School in Clarksburg; Parkersburg Catholic High School, and St. John Central Catholic High School in Huntington—has reported the great accomplishments of their graduates and wish them well as they now move on to higher education and other endeavors.

According to the diocese’s Department of Catholic Schools, the six high schools had a 99.7 graduation rate and 99 percent of graduates were accepted into colleges. Graduates were accepted into more than 270 colleges and universities and were offered more than $22.7 million in scholarships.

The following showcases the achievements of each school’s graduating classes.

The 48 members of the class of 2022 from Madonna High School have been offered $9.7 million merit-based scholarships with three of the graduates named National Merit semi-finalist. The graduates this year have been accepted to 112 colleges and they will be attending 29 colleges in 16 states.

“I am thrilled to celebrate the Madonna Catholic class of 2022,” said Colleen M. Hoyer, principal. “Despite their many hardships throughout their high school career, they persevered and focused on their bright futures. They were like a family who supported one another and we are so excited to see all they will accomplish.”

Charleston Catholic also had a 100 percent graduation rate and a 100 percent college acceptance rate for this year’s class.

Throughout their time at the school, the students engaged in 2,638 hours of service to their community.

Parksburg Catholic High School had 18 students in its graduating class. Together, they earned more than $2.2 million in merit and athletic based scholarships, school officials posted on the PCHS Facebook page. The school had a 100 percent graduation rate and 100 percent college acceptance. The 18 PCHS graduates were accepted to 33 colleges and 40 percent of the class received the Promise Scholarship.

In Wheeling, Central Catholic High School graduated 64 students this year who have been accepted into 69 colleges and universities.

Principal Becky Sancomb said the class was offered $5.5 million in four-year scholarships. Twelve graduates received the Presidential Scholarship or Honors College. Forty-nine of the graduates are West Virginia residents and 47 percent qualified for the Promise Scholarship.

One of the students received a NROTC Full Ride Scholarship for $200,000, Sancomb said.

“Congratulations to the CCHS class of 2022! A beautiful ceremony honoring an amazing group! We know you will do wonderful things!” school officials posted on Central Catholic’s Facebook page.

Notre Dame High School in Clarksburg had 37 graduates this year who received more than $2 million in scholarships. The school reported a 100 percent graduation rate with 41 percent qualifying for the Promise Scholarship, including two AP scholars with honors and Three Eagle Scouts.

“To say we are proud of them all is an understatement. Each one of them will be missed more than they know and now hold the honored title of a Notre Dame alum!” school officials posted on Notre Dame’s Facebook page.

Madonna High School in Weirton had 40 graduates this year who were offered $2.6 million in scholarships for four-year schools. Fifty-two percent of the class is college-bound West Virginia residents who earned the Promise Scholarship, school officials said.

In their four years at Madonna, the students completed 1,989 service hours. They also earned 492 college credit hours earned as dual credit before graduation.

Members of the class have been accepted to 29 colleges and universities with 31 of them going to a four-year school, four going to a two-year trade school, four entering the workforce, and one who enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps. A total of $1.7 million in scholarships was earned by members of the graduating class from St. Joseph Central Catholic High School in Huntington. They also graduated with 481 dual credit hours through Marshall University.

The class also has one H.S.T.A graduate who will receive a full ride to any school in West Virginia.

St. Joseph’s also reported 100 percent college acceptance and a 100 percent graduation rate.

Congratulations to the graduates, school officials posted on St. Joseph’s Facebook page: “The hard work that each and every one of them put in over the past four years is something everyone that knows each of them should be proud of. Congratulations to the St. Joseph Catholic High School class of 2022!”

Establish Partnership to Impact Health Care

WHEELING—On June 6, representatives from Wheeling University and Fairmont State University signed an articulation agreement to establish a partnership amongst the institutions, which aims to produce more quality health care professionals to serve patients in the State of West Virginia and across the country.

“This partnership will allow eligible students from Fairmont State University to make a seamless transition each year into Wheeling University’s Doctor of Physical Therapy Program,” said Ginny R. Favede, president of Wheeling University. “More importantly, by producing well trained physical therapists, there will be more health care professionals grounded in our mission to serve others in Appalachia and in our region.”

The agreement between the two institutions will allow for up to three students per year from Fairmont State’s Exercise Science program to be accepted into Wheeling University’s Doctor of Physical Therapy program, pending qualifications and academic requirements.

According to Dr. Alison Kreger, PT, DPT, Ed.D., director of Wheeling’s Doctor of Physical Therapy (DPT) program, “This agreement will help bring more graduates from West Virginia colleges and universities into the University’s DPT program. By partnering, Wheeling and Fairmont will help both institutions facilitate the training of physical therapy professionals who can provide high quality patient care.”

The Fairmont State Exercise Science program integrates the theories and practicalities of exercise physiology in preparing graduates for a career in the field of health and fitness, while also providing the foundation required for the successful application into several professional pathways, including physical therapy.

“We are grateful for the efforts from both institutions that have brought this partnership to fruition,” said Fairmont State University Health & Human Performance Department Chair, Jan Kiger. “We’re excited to work together to engage our students in further professional degree programs, physical therapy in particular, which is a highly sought-after degree.”

Wheeling University’s DPT program emphasizes a whole person approach to the investigation of clinical issues using a Problem-Based Learning (PBL) format. PBL encourages teamwork, open discussion, and researching appropriate resources to acquire the essential didactic knowledge. Through this unique learning format, Wheeling’s physical therapy graduates demonstrate exemplary professionalism, exceptional skills and problem solving, as well as the ability to access and utilize knowledge, reflective of a commitment to life-long learning.

“This partnership will allow Fairmont State Exercise Science majors to move forward in their careers by easing the transition into a professional degree pathway,” said Fairmont State University College of Education, Health & Human Performance Dean, Amanda Metcalf. “Through this partnership we are not only building a relationship that will benefit our students, but one that will benefit the community and local workforce. We are thrilled our students will have the opportunity to continue their educational journey and positively impact health care settings.”

Fairmont State University Vice President of Academic Affairs and Provost, Dianna Phillips, echoed Metcalf’s comments, “At Fairmont State University we center student success at the heart of everything we do. Engaging in this partnership with Wheeling University allows us to continue providing a transformative impact to our students, while also strengthening health care throughout our region and beyond.”
‘Life and Dignity for All’ is Theme of USCCB’s Religious Freedom Week

By Catholic News Service
WASHINGTON (CNS) — “Life and Dignity for All” is the theme of this year’s Religious Freedom Week of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.

The observance opens June 22, the feast day of Sts. Thomas More and John Fisher, both English martyrs who fought religious persecution. The week ends June 29, the feast of Sts. Peter and Paul, and includes the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, which is June 24.

“This year, as we approach the Supreme Court’s decision in Dobbs v. Jackson Women’s Health Organization,” the USCCB “is especially mindful of the debates around our country about abortion,” said a news release about Religious Freedom Week.

“The Catholic Church plays a crucial role in bearing witness to the Gospel of life and serving all who will be affected by these discussions and their outcomes.”

The Dobbs case involves a Mississippi law banning abortion after the 15th week of pregnancy. An initial draft of a Supreme Court opinion in the case that was leaked May 2 indicated the high court is set to overturn its Roe v. Wade decision, which 50 years ago legalized abortion nationwide.

The court also is expected to overturn its 1992 ruling in Planned Parenthood v. Casey, which affirmed Roe and prohibited regulations that created an “undue burden” on women seeking an abortion.

If the final ruling in Dobbs v. Jackson Women’s Health Organization overturns Roe and Casey, the issue of abortion would be returned to the states.

Another a major area of concern continues to be protecting the religious freedom of U.S. Catholic institutions, such as schools, hospitals and child welfare service providers, “to carry out their missions with integrity” and in accordance with their religious beliefs, the USCCB news release said.

“In particular, protecting Catholic adoption and foster care will become even more vital, as we take new steps in building a culture of life and dignity for all in the United States,” it said.

“To build a culture of life and dignity for all,” the Catholic Church “must support women and children,” the release added.

To that end, the USCCB’s Committee on Pro-Life Activities in 2020 launched the “Walking with Moms in Need” nationwide initiative. Its aim is “to engage every Catholic parish in providing a safety net to ensure that pregnant and parenting moms have the resources, love and support they need to nurture the lives of their children.”

In starting the initiative, the U.S. bishops said they want to ensure “our Catholic parishes are places of welcome for women facing challenging pregnancies or who find it difficult to care for their children after birth, so that any mother needing assistance will receive life-affirming support and be connected to appropriate programs and resources where she can get help.”

Among its goals is to help Catholics “recognize the needs of pregnant and parenting moms in their communities, enabling parishioners to know these mothers, to listen to them, and to help them obtain the necessities of life for themselves and their children.”

Another focus of Religious Freedom Week is international, the USCCB release said. The USCCB’s Committee for Religious Liberty has collaborated with the Office of International Justice and Peace “to raise awareness about religious liberty in China and in solidarity with people throughout the world who suffer for their faith.”

The USCCB provides “Pray-Reflect-Act” resources at www.usccb.org/ReligiousFreedomWeek. Each day focuses on different religious liberty topics and this year’s daily themes intersect with life issues.

“Through prayer, education and public action during Religious Freedom Week, the USCCB continues to advocate for the essential right of religious freedom for Catholics and for those of all faiths,” the release added.

Catholic Lawmakers Who OK’d Colorado Abortion Bill Asked to Not Take Communion

By Julie Asher, Catholic News Service

In a June 6 open letter, the Catholic bishops of Colorado asked those Catholic legislators “who live or worship in the state” and voted for Colorado’s Reproductive Health Equity Act “to voluntarily refrain from receiving holy Communion.”

They urged this action “until public repentance takes place and sacramental absolution is received in confession.”

“The burden from their decision does not rest upon the shoulders of priests, deacons or lay extraordinary ministers of the Eucharist,” they wrote. “It rests upon the consciences and souls of those politicians who have chosen to support this evil and unjust law.”

The Reproductive Health Equity Act is considered one of the nation’s most permissive abortion measures. Gov. Jared Polis quickly signed it into law April 4 just after it finished its journey on the state House and Senate.

It permits on-demand abortion for a full 40 weeks of a pregnancy; allows abortion based on discrimination of sex, race or children with disabilities such as Down syndrome; and removes the requirement that parents of minors be notified if their minor receives an abortion.

It also enshrines in law that “a fertilized egg, embryo, or fetus does not have independent or derivative rights under state laws and prohibits any regulation of abortion based on concerns regarding the health of the woman or baby.”

“The recently concluded 2022 legislative session was difficult for many Coloradans who watched in dismay as their state legislators rushed out one of the most extreme abortion bills in the country through the chambers of the Capitol and to Governor Polis’ desk for his signature,” the prelates wrote.

As the bill moved ahead in the Legislature, “there was a strong outcry against it,” they said. “Thousands of people wrote to their lawmakers. Over 350 people testified against RHEA (Reproductive Health Equity Act) in the House and more than 215 testified against it in the Senate into the early hours of the morning.”

The four prelates were among hundreds of people who offered testimony in opposition to the bill in hourlong hearings on it.

Some lawmakers who supported the bill said it “is designed to make our state an abortion destination and ‘safe haven,’” they said. “They expect pregnant mothers to come flooding in from surrounding states for abortions if Roe v. Wade is overturned. It causes us profound sadness and distress to know that some Catholic legislators voted for this.”

“We have a strong desire to discuss the spiritual and cultural impact of laws like RHEA with politicians of both parties who say they are Catholic and who represent people in our state,” the bishops continued. “As their shepherds we want to ensure that they understand the church’s teaching on receiving holy Communion and the proper spiritual disposition for doing so.”

“Efforts have already been made to speak with several of these lawmakers, but unfortunately, very few of them have accepted the invitation to meet.”

By their public votes, the bishops wrote, it was clear several Catholic lawmakers believe “preborn babies are worth less than those who have had the gift of being born, according to this morally bankrupt logic.”

The bishops thanked Sens. Barbara Kirkmeyer, Kevin Priola and Jim Smallwood and Rep. Andres Pico, who are Catholic and voted “to protect the unborn and against allowing our state to strip them of their God-given right to life.”

“Voting for RHEA was participating in a gravely sinful action because it facilitates the killing of innocent unborn babies, and those Catholic politicians who have done so have very likely placed themselves outside of the communion of the church,” they wrote.

The prelates quoted from “The Mystery of the Eucharist in the Life of the Church,” a 26-page statement approved by the body of bishops last November.

It did not call for barring Catholic politicians who support abortion from Communion, but it was addressed to all Catholics in the United States and explained “the centrality of the Eucharist in the life of the church.”

“To receive the body and blood of Christ while in a state of mortal sin represents a contradiction,” Colorado’s bishops wrote, quoting the document. “The person who, by his or her own action, has broken communion with Christ and his church but receives the Blessed Sacrament, acts incoherently, both claiming and rejecting communion at the same time.”

“Moreover,” the bishops said, “receiving the Eucharist in a state of mortal sin is sacrilegious because it is a failure to show the reverence due to the sacred body and blood of Christ.”

“Finally,” they said, “when other Catholics see public figures receiving Jesus in such a spiritual state their resolve to be faithful to the Gospel can be weakened. A Catholic politician or public figure leading or encouraging others to do evil is a failure to respect the souls of others and is what the church defines as ‘scandal,’” as the document stated.

“We pray that this letter and our request to refrain from receiving Jesus in the Eucharist spurs sincere reflection and conversion in the hearts of those who have participated in allowing this grave act of injustice to become law,” they said.

This request was not one they made “lightly,” they said, but was made out of their “duty to safeguard the faith and care for the souls of all the faithful — including these politicians.”

“We are always willing to engage in conversation with any Catholic politician to whom this applies,” they concluded, “and we want you to know that we regularly pray for all who hold public office.”
Brutal Attack on Worshippers in Nigeria is Called Attack on ‘Entire Church’

By Catholic News Service

NEW YORK (CNS) — The brutal attack on people at a Catholic church in Nigeria on Pentecost Sunday is “an attack on the entire church,” said a U.S. official of Aid to the Church in Need, an international Catholic charity.

According to the Reuters news agency, gunmen fired at people inside and outside St. Francis Xavier Church in Owo, located in the southwestern state of Ondo. At least 50 people were reportedly killed during Mass June 5. Dozens more were injured and rushed to nearby hospitals.

“We extend our prayers for the victims, the wounded, their families and the entire Catholic community of Owo,” said George Marlin, chairman of the board of Aid to the Church in Need in New York, which is based in New York. “We stand with the Diocese of Ondo to help treat the wounded and those traumatized by this horrible tragedy.”

“This is the latest in the ongoing wave of brutal attacks on Nigeria’s Christians,” he said in a June 6 statement. “Political and religious leaders around the world must condemn this barbarism and put pressure on Nigerian President Muhammadu Buhari to do whatever it takes finally to stop the violence and protect the Nigerian people.”

Marlin called it “imperative” that the U.S. State Department “reinstate Nigeria as a Country of Particular Concern that violates religious freedom. Christians are not the only victims of faith-based violence in Nigeria, but they are the principal target,” he stated.

On Nov. 17, 2021, as required by the International Religious Freedom Act, U.S. Secretary of State Antony Blinken identified 10 “Countries of Particular Concern” — those who are in severe violations of religious freedom — but he omitted Nigeria. The announcement was met immediately with severe criticism by human rights and religious rights organizations.

On June 2 of this year, in releasing the State Department’s 2021 Report on International Religious Freedom, Blinken noted that in Nigeria, “several state governments are using antidelimination and blasphemy laws to punish people for expressing their beliefs.”

No group had claimed responsibility for the attack in Owo as of June 6.

Aid to the Church in Need, which serves “the suffering and persecuted church” around the world, “will come to the aid of our brothers and sisters in Nigeria in solidarity of prayer and support,” Marlin added.

According to a June 8 USCCB release, Bishop Malloy reiterated in his letter the committee’s solidarity with the Catholic Church in Nigeria “amid the unabated violence” in that country and in particular the attacks on Catholics.

“Nigeria has sadly become all too familiar with such growing violence,” the bishop said. He noted that the U.S. bishops international policy committee “has supported the church in Nigeria for many years in its effort to stop terrorist attacks by Boko Haram and armed groups, to build peace between herders and farmers, and to ensure credible and transparent elections.”

The committee’s members “have visited Nigeria and have received their church leaders in Washington,” he said, and now join the pope “in commanding the souls of the dead to the loving mercy of God and imploring ‘divine healing and consolation’ upon those who are grieving.”

“The committee remains prayerfully determined as ever to support our brothers and sisters of the church in Nigeria,” Bishop Malloy added.

In other U.S. reaction, Cardinal Timothy M. Dolan of New York also noted that the attacks in Owo are the latest “in a growing number of attacks on Christians in Nigeria,” but he called the June 5 attack “especially horrific” because at least 50 worshippers “were slaughtered merely for gathering to celebrate the great feast of Pentecost,” recognized traditionally as the “birthday of the church.”

“We pray for the repose of the souls of those who lost their lives in this attack, and for the comfort of all who mourn for them,” the cardinal said in a June 6 statement.

He added that New York Catholic’s prayers “are all the more fervent” as they recall that Bishop Jude Arogundade of Ondo was “a beloved pastor here in the Archdiocese of New York” before he returned home to Nigeria to serve as bishop.

Cardinal Dolan called “on the world community, including the United States, to take notice of this rising tide of anti-Catholic and anti-Christian attacks taking place in Nigeria, and work to restore protection for the fundamental right of religious liberty wherever and whenever it is threatened.”

Father Roger Landry, national chaplain for Aid to the Church in Need/USA, noted that the vestments a priest wears to celebrate Mass on Pentecost are “red, signifying the fire of the Holy Spirit.”

“Little did the Catholics at St. Francis Xavier in Owo, on the feast celebrating the church’s birthday, know that their garments would similarly be drenched in red blood,” he said in a statement.

But “our beloved brothers and sisters in the faith, including the little children, have not died in vain,” the priest added. “Their blood will fertilize the soil of the faith in Nigeria and their martyrdom has already inspired and emboldened believers around the world.”

Man Arrested for Making Death Threats against Justice Kavanaugh

By Carol Zimmermann, Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — A man threatening to kill Supreme Court Justice Brett Kavanaugh was arrested near the justice’s Maryland home June 8, carrying a gun, a knife and zip ties.

The threat against the 57-year-old justice, who has been on the court since 2018, was first reported by The Washington Post and confirmed by a Supreme Court spokesperson.

Officers with the Montgomery County Police Department in Maryland arrested Nicholas John Roske, a 26-year-old from California who is said to have arrived by taxi just after 1 a.m. outside Kavanaugh’s home in Chevy Chase, a Washington suburb.

A criminal complaint and affidavit filed in federal court in Maryland said Roske had a Glock 17 pistol, ammunition, a knife, zip ties, pepper spray, duct tape and other items and told police he planned to break into Kavanaugh’s house and kill him and then planned to kill himself.

The Associated Press reported that Roske was upset by a leaked draft opinion suggesting the Supreme Court could overturn Roe v. Wade, the court’s 1973 decision which legalized abortion nationwide, in its highly anticipated ruling in an abortion case from Mississippi.

He also said he was upset about the school shooting in Uvalde, Texas, and thought Kavanaugh would vote to loosen gun control laws. The gun control comment is likely in reference to a recent challenge awaiting a Supreme Court decision over New York’s permit requirement for carrying concealed guns.

Two U.S. Marshals — part of the security provided to the justices since the leak of the draft opinion in May — spotted Roske, but he was not apprehended until he called 911 saying he was having suicidal thoughts and planned to kill Kavanaugh, AP reported.

“This kind of behavior is obviously behavior we will not tolerate,” Attorney General Merrick Garland told reporters June 8. “Threats of violence and actual violence against the justices of course strike at the heart of our democracy and we will do everything we can to prevent them and to hold people who do them accountable.”

Protests at the Supreme Court and near homes at some of the court’s conservative justices started taking place after the May 2 leak of the opinion in Dobbs v. Jackson Women’s Health Organization, a case about Mississippi’s ban on abortions after 15 weeks of pregnancy with the potential to also overturn Roe.

The draft opinion, written by Justice Samuel Alito, said Roe “was egregiously wrong from the start” and that “Roe and Casey must be overruled.” Casey v. Planned Parenthood is the 1992 decision that affirmed Roe.

Following initial protests about the draft, Garland announced May 18 that he was increasing security at the homes of all of the justices. A security fence also surrounds the Supreme Court building and nearby streets have been closed.

Alito’s draft opinion said the court’s 1973 Roe decision had exceptionally weak reasoning “and the decision has had damaging consequences.”

“Far from bringing about a national settlement of the abortion issue, Roe and Casey have enflamed debate and deepened division,” he added.

Political’s report on the draft said Alito’s opinion was supported by Justices Clarence Thomas, Neil Gorsuch, Kavanaugh and Amy Coney Barrett and that Justices Stephen Breyer, Sonia Sotomayor and Elena Kagan were working on dissents. It was not clear how Chief Justice John Roberts planned to vote.

A Homeland Security Department report said the draft opinion has unleashed a wave of threats against officials and others and increased the likelihood of extremist violence.

Divorce and Beyond Support Group to be Held at Inwood Parish

INWOOD—Divorce and Beyond is a support group for those who have suffered the loss through a separation or/and divorce.

“Our support group is NOT a social group but rather a group of people journeying together understanding and sharing feelings,” group organizers said. “Many people seek professional help via a counselor, some go it alone but all suffer from the same feelings of loss. The emotions and feeling do not have a timetable nor set pattern. Perhaps you have been separated or divorced for years but still have that haunting feeling of loss. How can we help?”

The group provides members with the tools to understand the cause of such feelings and how to cope, all while sharing and learning with others in the group, organizers said.

A Divorce and Beyond Group will be offered in September at St. Leo Parish in Inwood. For further information contact Richard Hitchcock at (803) 331-2565 or email at rhitchsr@gmail.com.

Franciscan University Hosting Adult Summer Conferences

Free, Select Livestreamed Sessions Also Being Offered

STEUBENVILLE, OHIO—This summer, Franciscan University of Steubenville will host five Steubenville Conferences for adults to grow in their Catholic faith through dynamic speakers, engaging workshops, Masses and Holy Hours, and opportunities for fellowship.

The conferences will focus on the theme of jubilee, drawing inspiration from Luke 4:18-19: “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring glad tidings to the poor. . . and to proclaim a year acceptable to the Lord.”

The theme coincides with Franciscan University’s 75th jubilee anniversary, but it’s also fitting following the pandemic and other challenges of the last two years, said Franciscan University Director of Evangelization and Formation John Beaulieu.

“Through our faith in Christ, we can rise above our circumstances and rejoice in the Lord. The world has its struggles, but God’s grace is stronger,” Beaulieu said. “Steubenville Conferences provide a place where people can encounter the Lord, be renewed in their faith, and come together with a community of other Catholics.”

The Priests, Deacons, and Seminarians Retreat, June 13–17, will offer renewal, rest, and encouragement for men called to Holy Orders. Speakers include Bishop Scott McCaig, Sister Mary Michael Fox, OP, Deacon Ralph Poyo, and Bishop Joseph Espaillat.

The St. John Bosco Conference, July 11–14, is geared toward catechists, Catholic school teachers, campus and youth ministers, and others who work to pass on the teachings of the Catholic faith. Speakers include Father Mike Schmitz, Bishop Donald Hying, Dr. Carole Brown, and Father Drake McCalister.

Featuring world-renowned scholars, the Applied Biblical Studies Conference will be held July 27–29. Participants will gain a deeper understanding of Scripture while hearing from speakers including Dr. Scott Hahn, Steubenville Bishop Jeffrey Monforton, Father Louis Mersone, Dr. John Bergsma, Kimberly Hahn, and Dr. Mary Healy.

Wrapping up the summer conference season is the Defending the Faith Conference on July 29–31. Helping participants to live the Gospel in everyday life will be a lineup of speakers who include Matt Fradd, Dr. Edward Sri, Trent Horn, Dr. Scott Hahn, Patrick Madrid, Steve Ray, Curtis Martin, Derya Little, and Norman Bin Yazid.

For those who cannot attend on campus, three of the conferences will also offer a free, livestreamed session featuring a keynote address, followed by a Holy Hour. To access each session, livestream viewers will need to register for free online.

Preparing for a New Life

Stephanie Harris enrolled in classes at the Catholic Charities Community Center of Huntington when she was eight months pregnant and living at a recovery house. She did not have many of the items expectant parents excitedly prepare. Our team went to work to break down barriers and determine the best course of action to help Stephanie reach her goals.

We were able to help Stephanie apply for benefits and receive emergency utility assistance. We connected her with community partners, such as RESTORE/Habitat for Humanity, as well as “New Beginnings,” a Christian organization that helps new mothers with counseling, babysitting and car seats. Sacred Heart Church in Huntington provided over $200 worth of baby items.

Following the birth of her son, CCWVa was able to connect Stephanie to an employment opportunity that allows her to work from home while caring for her new baby boy. Stephanie and her son are thriving!

Papa dice estar atento por Pentecostés en Nigeria

Por Junno Arocho Esteves, Catholic News Service

CIUDAD DEL VATICANO (CNS) — El papa Francisco expresó su solidaridad y cercanía con los católicos en Nigeria después de que hombres armados asaltaron una iglesia y, según informes, mataron a al menos 50 personas durante una Misa de Pentecostés.

"Mientras se aclaran los detalles del incidente, el papa Francisco reza por las víctimas y por el país, dolorosamente afectado en un momento de celebración, y encomienda a ambos al Señor, para que envíe su Espíritu de los Santos", dijo Mattheo Bruní, director de la oficina de prensa del Vaticano, en un comunicado el 5 de junio.

Según la agencia de noticias Reuters, hombres armados dispararon contra personas dentro y fuera de la iglesia St. Francis Xavier en Owo, ubicada en el estado suroccidental de Ondo. Ningún grupo se había atribuido la responsabilidad del ataque hasta el 6 de junio.

Además de los que murieron, decenas más resultaron heridos y fueron trasladados a hospitales cercanos.

El padre Augustine Ikwu, director de comunicaciones de la diócesis de Ondo, dijo que el ataque "ha dejado a la comunidad devastada". También dijo que "todos los sacerdotes de la parroquia están a salvo y ninguno fue secuestrado", como se informó en varios sitios de redes sociales.

"Sigamos orando por ellos y por la buena gente de Owo y el estado en general", dijo el padre Ikwu. "Re currirnos a Dios para que consuele a las familias de aquellos cuyas vidas se perdieron en este angustioso incidente, y rezamos para que las almas de los difuntos descansen en paz."

En una serie de tuits publicados poco después del ataque, Rotimi Akeredolu, gobernador del estado de Ondo, dijo: "El ataque vil y satánico" fue "un ataque calculado contra el pueblo amante de la paz de (Owo) que ha disfrutado de una paz relativa durante los últimos años."

"Quiero expresar mis condolencias a quienes per dieron a sus seres queridos en este espantoso asesinato. Esta es una gran miseria. La vida no es un bien inmortal. Nuestra gente en el estado de Ondo no bajará la guardia. Esto no volverá a suceder. He instado a los jefes de las agencias de seguridad a tomar todas las medidas necesarias.

CIUDAD DEL VATICANO (CNS) — Por qué los ancianos son despreciados y vistos como inútiles no sólo cuando cargan con tanta sabiduría sobre la vida y pueden abrir la puerta a la ternura de Dios? preguntó el papa Francisco.

"Lo que interesa es toda la personalidad, lo que interesa es el corazón, y el corazón permanece con esa juventud del vino bueno, que cuanto más envejece mejor es", dijo entre apreciaciones. El papa continuó su serie de charlas sobre la vejez examinando el relato de San Juan sobre Nocidemo (Jn 3, 1-21). Jesús trata de despertar al anciano fariseo la necesidad de nacer de nuevo. Jesús dice que para ver el reino de Dios se necesita “nacer de nuevo”, que significa “renacer de lo alto con la gracia de Dios” y no “renacer físicamente” como si esta vida hubiera sido un desperdicio de tiempo o un “experi mento fallido” que necesitaba ser borrado y reh echo, dijo el papa.

"Esta vida es preciosa a los ojos de Dios, nos identifica como seres amados tiernamente por Dios", dijo el papa.

El encuentro de Jesús con Nocidemo tiene algo que enseñar a las personas de hoy, que, como Nocidemo, no entienden lo que es y debe ser el "renacimiento" a la luz de la fe, dijo. Hoy, dijo, existe un "sueño de una eterna juventud" y un "miedo que nos hace querer volver al vientre de nuestra madre para volver siempre con un cuerpo joven".

"Hay una preocupante tendencia a considerar el nacimiento de un niño como el simple asunto de la producción y reproducción biológica del ser humano", también cultiva este "mito de la eterna juventud" no debe confundirse con el loable esfuerzo de mantenerse saludable y promover el bienestar, dijo el papa.

El mundo, que muestra "una preocupante tendencia a considerar el nacimiento de un niño como el simple asunto de la producción y reproducción biológica del ser humano", también cultiva este "mito de la eterna juventud" no debe confundirse con el loable esfuerzo de mantenerse saludable y promover el bienestar, dijo el papa.

El papa citó a la actriz italiana Anna Magnani, quien dijo: "Por favor, no retuquen mis arrugas. He tardado toda una vida en conseguirlas".

Hoy, dijo, existe un "sueño de una eterna juventud" que no debe confundirse con el loable esfuerzo de mantenerse saludable y promover el bienestar, dijo el papa.

"Los ancianos son los mensajeros del futuro, los ancianos son los mensajeros de la ternura, los ancianos son los mensajeros de la sabiduría de la experiencia vivida. Avancemos y miremos a los ancianos", dijo el papa.
