Bringing Christ to the Community on Corpus Christi Sunday

“We will say, as we walk, ‘This is the world’s savior. He remains with us and blesses us still. Come, let us adore.’

—Bishop Mark Brennan, homily for Corpus Christi Sunday, June 19, Cathedral of St. Joseph in Wheeling

By Colleen Rowan

The National Eucharistic Revival opened on the Solemnity of the Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ, Corpus Christi Sunday (June 19), with Eucharistic processions in dioceses across the country. Through this three-year initiative, the U.S. bishops aim to revive and reinvigorate belief in Christ’s true presence in the Eucharist.

In the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston, Corpus Christi processions were held at a number of cities and small towns in all six vicariates. In Wheeling, Bishop Mark Brennan celebrated Sunday Mass at the Cathedral of St. Joseph. The bishop then led a Eucharistic procession with more than 250 Catholic faithful from the cathedral through seven blocks of the city to St. Alphonsus Church. Joining them were priests, deacons, and women religious including a group of Dominican Sisters of Mary, Mother of the Eucharist, from Weirton.

At the end of his celebration of Mass, Bishop Brennan knelt before the altar and incensed the Most Blessed Sacrament in the monstrance. After the exposition hymn, the bishop received the humeral veil, took the monstrance and processed with the faithful following him from the cathedral to begin the procession. The many who walked in the procession were followed by buses that transported people who could not make the journey. Downtown was filled with the voices of the Catholic faithful as they sang “A Hymn in Honor of the Doctrine of the Real Presence,” prayed the “Litany of the Most Blessed Sacrament,” sang “O Sacrament Most Holy,” prayed the “Anima Christi Prayer,” and sang “Jesus, My Lord, My God, My All.”

The procession ended with benediction at the main altar at St. Alphonsus.

In his homily that morning at the cathedral, Bishop Brennan said that the Eucharistic procession is “a public demonstration of our belief that Jesus Christ is truly present in the Eucharist just as he said he would be. We will say, as we walk, ‘This is the world’s savior. He remains with us and blesses us still. Come, let us adore.’”

Of all the sacraments, the Eucharist is the one that provides the densest, most intimate experience of Christ in us, Bishop Brennan said. “When we eat the body of Christ and drink his blood, he changes us more and more into a true image of himself. And we need his strength in us to persevere and follow him,” the bishop said. “Jesus said, ‘This is my body,’ while holding bread; and ‘This is my blood,’ holding a cup of wine. The son of God has the power to put in effect what he said.”

The change is not at the physical level, the bishop said. The change is at the deepest level of reality in those elements of food and drink.

“The Lord Jesus Christ, from heaven, extends his risen body into those elements so that what we receive is no longer bread and wine but truly Jesus’s body and blood, soul and divinity,” Bishop Brennan said. “This is a mystery we can describe, but not fully explain.”

Christ has given us a great gift—a gift of himself disguised in the appearance of bread and wine but truly with us as he promised he would be,” the bishop said.

Bishop Brennan then spoke of Blessed Carlos Acutis, who died in 2006 when he was just 15, and was beatified in 2020. Blessed Carlos had a deep devotion to the Eucharist, Bishop Brennan said, noting that he would say, “The Eucharist is my highway to heaven.”

“On that pilgrim journey to heaven, my brothers and sisters, the Lord in the Eucharist accompanies us,” Bishop Brennan said. “For he knows that road can be rough. He does not leave us to walk alone.”

Following benediction at St. Alphonsus, a luncheon was provided in the parish hall.

At parishes all over West Virginia Eucharistic processions were also held. See Pages 6-7 for coverage.

The Eucharistic Revival is part of the U.S. bishops’ response to reports of a high percentage of Catholics not believing in the real presence of Christ in the Eucharist. It is a three-year initiative of the bishops to “bring people back to the church which openly acknowledges the Lord’s presence in the sacrament of the altar,” Bishop Brennan said in a story that appeared in the June 3 issue of The Catholic Spirit. That is the hope of the bishops. “We need to revive the faith of the people of Christ’s true presence in the Eucharist. The Eucharist is central to our Catholic faith. It’s not a peripheral thing. It’s at the heart and center of our worship.”

begin and end on the feast of Corpus Christi. The goal is to animate people from around each diocese in the U.S. by doing things that are diocesan or carried out on the vicariate level, Bishop Brennan said in a story in The Catholic Spirit’s June 3 issue.

According to the National Eucharistic Revival website, this first year (June 19, 2022 – June 11, 2023) is a diocesan revival inviting diocesan staff, bishops, and priests to respond to the Lord’s personal invitation and equips them to share this love with the faithful through Eucharistic congresses and events.

The theme for the diocesan year of the Eucharistic Revival in the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston is “My Flesh for the Life of the World” from John 6:51. Throughout this year there will be events and gatherings at the vicariate level. This summer monthly articles will start to be featured in The Catholic Spirit about the Eucharist and the revival. The articles will begin in August. Also starting this summer will be videos and other media spotlighting the Eucharist on the diocese’s website and social media. Activities at Camp Carlo summer youth camp in Huttonsville will center on the Eucharist and there will be vicariate/regional book studies (in-person or on ZOOM). Also planned are “Emmaus Evenings” in Wheeling and Charleston (evenings of prayer, scripture, reflection, Eucharist, and a light meal to follow). More about events planned will be in upcoming issues of The Catholic Spirit.

The Year of Parish Revival (June 11, 2023 – July 17, 2024) will foster Eucharistic devotion at the parish level, strengthening liturgical life through faithful celebration of the Mass, Eucharistic Adoration, missions, resources, preaching, and organic movements of the Holy Spirit, the website states.

Next will be the National Eucharistic Congress which will be held July 17-21, 2024 in Indianapolis.

“At this historic event, more than 80,000 Catholics of all ages will gather in Indianapolis to reconsecrate their hearts to the source and summit of our faith,” organizers said.

There will then be a Year of Going out on Mission (July 21, 2024 – Pentecost 2025).

“Having enkindled a missionary fire in the hearts of the American faithful, the Holy Spirit will send us out on mission to share the gift of our Eucharistic Lord,” organizers said.

Pope Offers Prayers for Victims of Earthquake in Afghanistan

By Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Pope Francis offered prayers for victims of a strong earthquake that hit a remote, mountainous area of Afghanistan near the border with Pakistan.

At least 1,000 people were dead — the death toll was expected to increase — and more than 1,500 people were injured in the quake, which hit just over 100 miles southeast of Kabul.

At the end of his general audience June 22, Pope Francis said: “In the past few hours, an earthquake has claimed victims and caused extensive damage in Afghanistan. I express my sympathy to the injured and those affected by the earthquake, and I pray in particular for those who have lost their lives and for their families. I hope that with everyone’s help, the suffering of the dear Afghan people can be alleviated.”

The Associated Press reported the disaster posed a major test for Afghanistan’s Taliban government, which seized power last August. Many international aid agencies left after the Taliban takeover. Catholic Relief Services, the U.S. bishops’ international relief and development agency, still has a presence there.

Justice Department urged to Address Violent Attacks on Pro-Life Centers

By Julie Asher, Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Biden administration’s “relative silence” over a growing number of attacks on churches, pregnancy resource centers and pro-life organizations over the abortion issue “endangers Americans even more,” said a coalition of pro-life and faith leaders.

In a letter released June 16, the leaders called on the U.S. Department of Justice to publicly condemn the attacks, “commit to vigorous efforts to prevent them, and to investigate and prosecute them.”

The letter to U.S. Attorney General Merrick Garland and Assistant Attorney General Kristen Clarke was signed by about 30 leaders “representing millions of Americans.”

The letter leaders acknowledged the FBI was “assisting at least one affected religious organization on this matter” and they said they were aware “through media reports” the agency was “at least investigating the firebombing” of a pro-life center in Madison, Wisconsin.

“However, the severity of the situation calls for your leadership,” they wrote Garland and Clarke. “This continued assault on religious and pro-life groups because of their beliefs is a manifest injustice that requires prompt, comprehensive and public response.”

They urged the Justice Department to “proactively engage with the affected faith community to ensure their concerns and security needs are being met,” and they requested a meeting with Garland’s office as well as the department’s Civil Rights Division “to discuss what plans are in the likelihood these attacks will intensify.”

A day before the pro-life coalition released its letter, more than 100 House Republicans sent a similar letter to Garland, calling on the Justice Department to investigate these incidents “as acts of terrorism” and kill him and then planned to kill himself.

The pro-life coalition’s letter also noted the death threat against Supreme Court Justice Brett Kavanaugh.

On June 8, Maryland police arrested Nicholas John Roske, a 26-year-old from California, near the justice’s Maryland home in Chevy Chase, Maryland. He was carrying a gun, a knife and zip ties. Roske called 911 to turn himself in and told police he planned to break into Kavanaugh’s house and kill him and then planned to kill himself.

On June 15 a federal grand jury indicted him on charges of attempting to murder a justice of the United States.

A day earlier the House gave final approval to legislation allowing around-the-clock security protection for families of Supreme Court justices.

The measure was passed unanimously by the Senate in May but was held up by House Democrats who wanted the measure to also include protection for court employees’ families.

On May 9, then-White House Press Secretary Jen Psaki tweeted that President Joe Biden “strongly believes in the constitutional right to protest. But that should never include violence, threats, or vandalism. Judges perform an incredibly important function in our society, and they must be able to do their jobs without concern for their personal safety.”

Pope Asks Families to Take a Small Step Toward Greater Holiness

By Cindy Wooden, Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — The Catholic Church professes marriage and family life to be a path to holiness — a daunting concept — but one that can start with a tiny step, Pope Francis said.

“Start from where you are, and, from there, try to journey together: together as couples, together in your families, together with other families, together with the church,” the pope said June 22, opening the World Meeting of Families with an evening “Festival of Families” in the Vatican audience hall.

The in-presence portion of most of the event June 22-26 was limited to about 2,000 people — official delegates of bishops’ conferences, Catholic family associations and movements.

But the entire event was being livestreamed, and parishes and dioceses around the world were holding their own events at the same time on the theme, “Family love: a vocation and a path to holiness.”

At the opening festival, with some 4,500 people in the Vatican audience hall, Pope Francis said he wanted the church to be a “good Samaritan that draws near to you and helps you to continue your journey and to take a step forward, however small.”

Cardinal Kevin J. Farrell, prefect of the Dicastery for Laity, the Family and Life, welcomed delegates to the gathering and told Pope Francis the five families — from Rome, Ukraine and Congo — that shared their stories “are not perfect families ... because, as you always say, perfect don’t exist.”

“They are normal families who, like so many others, in every country and latitude, go through the difficulties and sufferings typical of our time,” the cardinal said, but they have discovered that when the problems are experienced with faith, they can open “incredible paths of family holiness.”

Serena Zangla and Luigi Franco, who have lived together for 10 years and have three children, spoke to the pope of the difficulty they had in finding a parish that would accept and support them, for which Pope Francis apologized. Zangla said they finally have found a community and are hoping to be married soon.

The sacrament of marriage is the gift God gives to couples in love, the pope said. “It is a marvelous gift, which contains the power of God’s own love: strong, enduring, faithful, ready to start over after every failure or moment of weakness.”

“Family life is not ‘mission impossible,’” he told them. “By the grace of the sacrament, God makes it a wonderful journey, to be undertaken together with him and never alone.”

Roberto and Maria Angela Corbella shared with the crowd the story of the illness and death of their daughter, Chiara, who eventually chose not to pursue cancer treatment so her unborn baby would live.

“To see how she experienced the trial of her illness helped you to lift up your gaze, not to remain imprisoned in grief, but to be open to something greater: the mysterious plans of God, to eternity, to heaven,” the pope said. “I thank you for this witness of faith!”

Paul and Germaine Balenzo of Congo spoke of the crises in their marriage, including infidelity, and how members of the Christian Family Community helped them find the strength to forgive and begin again.

“No one wants a love that is short-term or is marked with an expiration date,” the pope said. “We suffer greatly whenever failings, negligence and human sins make a shipwreck of marriage. But even amid the tempest, God sees what is in our hearts.”

Listening to their story, the pope said he was reminded of the biblical story of the prodigal son, “only this time, the ones who went astray were the parents, not the child!”

Celebrating West Virginia Day: A Message from Our CEO

By Beth Zarate, Catholic Charities West Virginia President and Chief Executive Officer

Every West Virginia Day I play the song “Country Roads,” and my heart swells with love for the people of this beautiful state. On June 20, we celebrate West Virginia as the last state created from one of the 13 original colonies under the British Empire. With its spectacular rolling mountains, hills and valleys, the Mountain State offers outdoor experiences that will soothe the soul.

At Catholic Charities, we have the privilege of serving all West Virginians, regardless of faith or background. With 15 offices across the state, we serve from the Ohio River Valley, across Allegheny plateaus and highlands, to the Potomac region. We know that every community is unique, with deep roots, strong family ties and robust traditions. It’s about attending church and sitting in the exact pew where your great great great grandmother once sat! Or, dropping your child at daycare with Mamaw, with whom you spent every afternoon when you were a child.

At Catholic Charities, we honor the individuality and dignity of every West Virginian. We start by recognizing each person’s individual strengths, and we work with each individual to set goals that he or she can achieve. We don’t impose our beliefs on people, but let them take the lead in setting goals based on their personal experience, dreams for their lives — trusting they know themselves better than we do! Recently we were able to assist a young mother who wanted to finish high school, a homeless young man who wanted to attain his trucking license, and a senior who fell behind on her rent and needed helping making a budget and a plan to stick to it.

We strive to serve with generosity, gratitude and grace: generosity of time, resources and sometimes patience; gratitude because we know what a privilege it is to be in the position to help others; and grace to extend unconditional love and know that every one of us is a heartbeat away from needing help — a child that every one of us is a heartbeat away from needing help — a child gets sick, a car breaks down, a job is lost or suddenly we have the responsibility to care for a loved one.

They say by knowing our history we build empathy through understanding the lives and struggles of those who came before us. I know personally I am extremely thankful to the West Virginians who forged the way so we can celebrate today.

“In the end, this is what family is all about. In the family, we experience what it is to be welcomed. Husbands and wives are the first to ‘welcome’ and accept one another, as they said they would do on the day of their marriage,” he said. “Later, as they bring a child into the world, they welcome that new life.

“Whereas in cold and anonymous situations, the weak are often rejected,” the pope said, “in families it is natural to welcome them: to accept a child with a disability, an elderly person in need of care, a family member in difficulty who has no one else — this gives hope.”

Zakia Seddiki, a Moroccan Muslim and widow of Luca Attanasio, the Italian ambassador to Congo killed in an ambush in 2021 at the age of 43, also spoke at the event.

Seddiki had told the crowd, “We based our family on authentic love, with respect, solidarity and dialogue between our cultures.”

“None of that was lost, not even after the tragedy of Luca’s death,” the pope said. “Not only do the example and the spiritual legacy of Luca continue to live on and to speak to the consciences of many people, but also the organization that Zakia founded in some way carries on his mission. Indeed, we can say that Luca’s diplomatic mission has now become ‘a mission of peace’ on the part of your entire family.”

Pope Francis praised Seddiki and Attanasio for supporting and respecting each other’s religious identities and focusing on how both Islam and Christianity called them to work “to overcome divisions, prejudices and narrow-mindedness, and to build together something grand, something beautiful, on the basis of what we have in common.”

Pope Francis congratulated the couple for celebrating a “feast of forgiveness” with their children and renewing their wedding vows at Mass, because it helped their children see “the humility needed to beg forgiveness and the God-given strength to pick yourselves up after the fall.”

Iryna Kozhushko and her daughter Sofia from Ukraine, and Pietro and Erika Chiriaco, the couple with six young children hosting them in Acilia, a suburb of Rome, also shared their stories.

The welcome offered by the Chiriaco family, Pope Francis said, shows the generosity that almost naturally comes from having a large family where people are “trained to make room for others.”

“In the end, this is what family is all about. In the family, we experience what it is to be welcomed. Husbands and wives are the first to ‘welcome’ and accept one another, as they said they would do on the day of their marriage,” he said. “Later, as they bring a child into the world, they welcome that new life.”

“Whereas in cold and anonymous situations, the weak are often rejected,” the pope said, “in families it is natural to welcome them: to accept a child with a disability, an elderly person in need of care, a family member in difficulty who has no one else — this gives hope.”

Zakia Seddiki, a Moroccan Muslim and widow of Luca Attanasio, the Italian ambassador to Congo killed in an ambush in 2021 at the age of 43, also spoke at the event.

Seddiki had told the crowd, “We based our family on authentic love, with respect, solidarity and dialogue between our cultures.”

“None of that was lost, not even after the tragedy of Luca’s death,” the pope said. “Not only do the example and the spiritual legacy of Luca continue to live on and to speak to the consciences of many people, but also the organization that Zakia founded in some way carries on his mission. Indeed, we can say that Luca’s diplomatic mission has now become ‘a mission of peace’ on the part of your entire family.”

Pope Francis praised Seddiki and Attanasio for supporting and respecting each other’s religious identities and focusing on how both Islam and Christianity called them to work “to overcome divisions, prejudices and narrow-mindedness, and to build together something grand, something beautiful, on the basis of what we have in common.”

Papa: La fuerza se puede encontrar en la fragilidad de la vejez

Por Junno Arocho Esteves, Catholic News Service

CIUDAD DEL VATICANO (CNS)—Los cristianos mayores están llamados a dar testimonio de la fuerza que viene de Dios, especialmente cuando los momentos de fragilidad y debilidad los hacen dependientes de los demás, expresó el papa Francisco.

“Nuestra dependencia crece con la enfermedad, con la vejez, y ya no somos autosuficientes como antes. Crece nuestra dependencia a los demás e incluso nuestra fe madura; incluso allí, Jesús está con nosotros, incluso allí, esa riqueza de una fe bien vivida en el camino de la vida fluye”, indicó el papa durante su audiencia general semanal el 22 de junio.

Al llegar a la Plaza de San Pedro en el papamóvil, el Santo Padre se detuvo brevemente y dio la bienvenida a varios niños ucranianos. Según la oficina de prensa del Vaticano, los niños eran refugiados que huyeron de la guerra y estudian en una escuela primaria en Roma.

Antes de concluir la audiencia, el papa instó a los fieles “no olvidarse de Ucrania”.

“No olvidemos el sufrimiento de ese pueblo már-tir”, acotó.

El Sumo Pontífice también lamentó el asesinato de dos jesuitas y un laico en el norte de México el 20 de junio. Según los jesuitas, hombres armados irrumpieron en la iglesia parroquial de la comunidad de Cerocahui en las Barrancas del Cóbre del estado de Chihuahua mientras se dirigían al laico, que trabajaba como guía turístico.

Los sacerdotes salieron después de que los hombres armados mataron al hombre y posteriormente les dispararon.

“¿Cuántos asesinatos en México!” lamentó el papa.

“Estoy cerca, en afecto y oración, de la comunidad católica afectada por esta tragedia. Una vez más, re-pito que la violencia no resuelve los problemas, sino que aumenta el sufrimiento innecesario”.

En su charla principal, el papa continuó su serie de catequesis sobre la vejez y reflexionó sobre el relato de San Juan sobre la advertencia de Jesús a Pedro de que “cuando sus viejo exentenderá sus manos, y el que vestirá y te guiará donde no quieres ir”.

Las palabras de Jesús a Pedro, explicó, revelan una relación abierta, franca, y directa que es “veraz”. A menudo, los cristianos pueden tener la tentación de encerrarnar el testimonio del Evangelio en el “capullo de una revelación azarada” que “nos aleja del Jesús verdad”. Sin embargo, en la vejez, a algunos hombres y mujeres mayores les puede resultar difícil aceptar la fragilidad o la inevitabilidad de la muerte y dudan en ceder su papel de “protagonista” a las generaciones más jóvenes.

“Nuestros, los ancianos, no debemos tener envidia de los jóvenes que hacen su propio camino, que toman nuestro lugar, que nos sobreviven”, dijo el papa de 85 años. “Aprender a despedirnos: esta es la sabiduría de los mayores. Pero salir bien, con una sonrisa”.

El papa Francisco dijo que la vida de una persona mayor es “una despedida lenta pero alegre” que les enseña sobre cómo se enfrentan los momentos reflexionar sobre la belleza de la vida que vivieron.

“Es hermoso cuando un anciano puede decir: ‘He vivido la vida, esta es mi familia, he vivido la vida, he sido pecador, pero también he hecho el bien’. Y esta paz que viene, esta es la despedida del anciano”, dijo el papa.
