A possible Eucharistic miracle in Connecticut is now under investigation by the Vatican.

Archbishop Leonard P. Blair told a Hartford television news station May 2 that the Dicastery (formerly Congregation) for the Doctrine of the Faith will examine whether an apparent multiplication of Communion hosts during a March 5 liturgy at St. Thomas Church in Thomaston, Connecticut, was supernatural. The church, along with Immaculate Conception Church and St. Casimir Church, both in Terryville, Connecticut, is part of St. Maximilian Kolbe Parish.

St. Maximilian Kolbe pastor Father Joseph Crowley said in a YouTube livestream of his March 12 homily that an unnamed extraordinary minister of holy Communion at the previous week’s liturgy at St. Thomas Church in Thomaston, Connecticut, was running out of hosts — only to find that “all of a sudden there (were) more hosts in the ciborium.”

The minister continued to distribute the hosts to some “100, 150 people in the congregation,” after which “there was the same amount, if not more hosts” in the ciborium, said Father Crowley in his March 12 homily. “What happened is Our Lord multiplied himself. ... I have no doubt. I know what I gave the person. I know what (was) returned (to the tabernacle). It was just very obvious and plain to me as to what happened.”

In a livestream video of his post-Communion remarks at the March 5 liturgy at St. Thomas Church, a visibly struck Father Crowley said the experience was “very powerful.

WASHINGTON (OSV News) — As Title 42 drew to its scheduled close on May 22, Catholic immigration advocates called for immigration and public policy recognizing the humanity of migrants and asylum seekers.

Title 42, a part of federal U.S. public health law granting the federal government some authority to implement emergency action to prevent the spread of contagious diseases by prohibiting some migrants from entry, was scheduled to expire in tandem with the end of the federal Public Health Emergency declared for COVID-19 in 2020. Lawmakers in both parties have expressed concerns that the end of Title 42 will lead to an increase in individuals seeking entry into the United States at the U.S.-Mexico border.

Anna Gallagher, executive director of the Catholic Legal Immigration Network, said, “In the coming days, as new policies are implemented and the post-Title 42 landscape unfolds, CLINIC will continue to report Pope Francis’ words: we are ‘brothers and sisters all.’”

Speaking to media May 2, Archbishop Blair said he had “sent out an experienced priest who has knowledge of church law, canon law, to follow procedure, (and) to just examine exactly what happened and under what circumstances.”

He noted that “the guidelines for these kinds of situations do call for me to notify the (Dicastery) for the Doctrine of the Faith in Rome.”

The Vatican’s investigation is expected to take approximately two weeks. In the 21st century, only four Eucharistic miracles have been recognized throughout the world, according to the Magis Center, which, under the leadership of scholar and Jesuit Father Robert J. Spitzer, promotes dialogue between faith and science.

The last recognized miracle occurred in 2013 in Legnica, Poland, where a consecrated host, left to dissolve in water after it was accidentally dropped, formed red stains that under scientific analysis were found to contain fragmented parts of cross-striated muscle resembling that of heart muscle. The host was also venerated in April 2016 by then-Bishop Zbigniew Kiernikowski of Legnica.

Dallas Bishop Reacts to Mass Shooting at Mall with ‘Heavy Heart,’ Urges ‘Prayers for Peace’

By Kate Scanlon

“The Islamic State claims to have its link in this tragedy. We must pray for the peace within our communities,” Bishop Burns said in his statement. “We must pray for the peace within our communities. And, we must have the courage to stand up to the forces of evil and the culture of death.”

President Joe Biden said in a May 7 statement that “eight Americans — including children — were killed yesterday in the latest act of gun violence to devastate our nation.”

“Jill and I are praying for their families and for others critically injured, and we are grateful to the first responders and all those who have come forward quickly and courageously to save lives,” Biden said, adding he has “directed federal agencies to provide all necessary support to federal, state, and local law enforcement involved in the response.”

“Yesterday, an assailant in tactical gear armed with an AR-15 style assault weapon gunned down innocent people in a shopping mall, and not for the first time,” Biden said. “Such an attack is too shocking to be so familiar. And yet, American communities have suffered roughly 200 mass shootings already this year, according to leading counts. More than 14,000 of our fellow citizens have lost their lives, credible estimates show. The leading cause of death for American kids is gun violence.”

Biden touted the Bipartisan Safer Communities Act, legislation he signed into law last year passed by Congress in the wake of a mass shooting at an elementary school in Uvalde, Texas. That legislation expanded the background check system for prospective gun buyers under 21 years old, closed a provision known as the “boyfriend loophole,” banned domestic abusers from purchasing firearms regardless of their marital status, and funded new investments in mental health resources.

“It is, indeed, a tragedy that we have more need, faster to save lives. “Once again I ask Congress to send me a bill banning assault weapons and high-capacity magazines,” he said, adding, “Enacting universal background checks. Requiring safe storage. Ending immunity for gun manufacturers. I will sign it immediately. We need nothing less to keep our streets safe.”

Biden ordered flags flown at half-staff as “a mark of respect for the victims of the senseless acts of violence,” according to a proclamation issued by the White House.

Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas, wrote on Twitter that he is “grieving with the Allen community,” and thanked local police and first responders “and all of those involved in responding to this afternoon’s horrific incident.”

St. Jude Catholic Church in Allen, Texas, posted on its Facebook page, “Let us pray together for the tragic events that occurred earlier today and all those affected by the devastating loss of life.”

“Lord God, Father in heaven, our hearts are broken, and we pray for all impacted by the horrible events that unfolded today in our community,” the posted prayer said. “We ask that You comfort all the families dealing with suffering and loss and pray that You give consolation as only You can give. We ask this in the name of Jesus Your Son, who lives and reigns with you and the Holy Spirit, the Lord.”

That prayer was followed by a request for the intercession of Mary and all the saints and the prayer to St. Michael the Archangel, which says in part: “Defend us in battle. Be our protection against the wickedness and snares of the devil.”

In a statement posted on its website, Allen Premium Outlets said, “We are horrified by today’s senseless tragedy and outraged by the violence that continues to plague our country.”

“Our thoughts and prayers are with the victims, their families and others affected by this heinous act,” the statement said. “We are thankful for the police officer’s heroic actions and for the support of all the first responders.”

Elsewhere in Texas, another tragedy struck the following day. Authorities said a driver plowed into a group outside a shelter that had been housing migrants in Brownsville near the Texas border May 7, leaving seven people dead as well as others injured. The bus stop is across the street from the Ozanam Center, a shelter that houses migrants.

Happy Mother’s Day

Treasure the Women Who Serve as Your Christian Example

By Joyce Bibey

Happy Mother’s Day to all the women in the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston that love, care, and nurture the roots of faith for our children young and old.

Mothers are invaluable and the role of a mother is challenging and daunting. Being a Catholic mom of God’s miracles that are our children requires the additional responsibilities of professing our faith; teaching virtues, prayers, and Church traditions; and keeping Christ in the center of our lives, words, and actions – just like Mary our Blessed Mother did.

Among cherished family photos of Bishop Mark Brennan and his brother Paul is one with their mother Regina “Jean” Lonsway Brennan taken by their father Edward in front of the outdoor chapel of St. Anne the mother of our Blessed Mother Mary, holding her grandson Jesus. The statue is in the gardens of the Franciscan Monastery of the Holy Land in America, located in Washington, D.C.

Bishop Mark is about 11 years old in the photo. He remembers his family outings fondly, including being on the grounds of this monastery that has 42 acres of gardens and full-sized replicas of shrines from the Holy Land. The family had moved to DC just a year prior.

You can see how happy and proud his mother was in the photo. We can only imagine her thoughts as a young mother standing with her boys on a beautiful day set aside to bring life to their faith and understanding of the significance of our Catholic traditions, saints, and prayers.

“I remember my mother, Jean, as a gentle, quiet woman, capable of maintaining friendships over many years and great distances and imbued with the spirit of Catholic faith,” Bishop Brennan said. “I also saw her achieve reconciliation with persons from whom she had been briefly estranged. Thank you, Mom, for giving me an example of true Christian living.”

Do not underappreciate or take a mother for granted. Pope Francis eloquently expresses how women and mothers are true heroes and “key players in fighting against an individualistic, self-centered society.”

“Not even the Christian community values them properly, despite the eminent example of the Mother of Jesus,” he said in a January 7, 2015, address. “To be a mother is a great treasure. Mothers, in their unconditional and sacrificial love for their children, are the antidote to individualism; they are the greatest enemies against war.”

It has been reported that the Pontiff keeps a prayer book with him with a note from his Nonna Rosa, that reads: “May my grandchildren, to whom I have given the best of my heart, have a long and happy life. But if there are days of pain or illness, or if the loss of a loved one fills them with despair, may they remember that a whisper of a prayer and a look to Mary at the feet of the cross, can be like a drop of balsam on even the deepest and most painful wounds.”

Let us all show our love and appreciation to our mothers, grandmothers, and all the women who form our faith.

We pray for God’s blessing on all mothers; our mothers both living and deceased, spiritual mothers, godmothers, foster mothers, stepmothers, women who nurture our souls like a mother, and women who long to be mothers or who have lost a child. We entrust the care of all mothers to Mary, the mother of our Lord, who understands the joys and sorrows of motherhood. We call out to St. Anne, mother of our Blessed Mother, to strengthen all women, as they share the love of God through our words and example.

Amen.
Martinsburg’s St. Joseph School Students Place at Divisional Level in American History Essay Contest

Galvin and fellow SJS students Stella Carter and Grace Derrick were invited to attend the National Society DAR State Conference on May 6 at Canaan Valley Resort & Conference Center in Davis for winning at the state level. During the conference, it was announced that Galvin won first place in his age group at the divisional level, while Carter (grade seven) and Derrick (grade six) each placed third. The East Central Division encompasses Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, and West Virginia.

A total of 70 students in grades five through eight from two schools in the Eastern Panhandle were asked by Pack Horse Ford Chapter NSDAR to imagine that they were delegates during the 1775-76 Second Continental Congress. They described which of the 13 colonies they represented and what was important for them to accomplish. The Second Continental Congress met from May 10, 1775, to March 1, 1781, and was instrumental in shaping what became the United States of America.

In his essay, Galvin represented John Hancock, former governor of Massachusetts. Carter presented ideas from fictitious delegate James Burn, while Derrick wrote from the perspective of a delegate she created named Jameson Marshall.

Free Seminar: How Are We Saved? The Catholic View of Salvation to be Offered by Catholic Distance University

Offered June 12–July 3, 2023, this three-week online seminar will present ways to credibly, convincingly, and compellingly explain and share how we know that heaven and the afterlife are real. Taught by Steven Hemler, president of the Catholic Apologetics Institute of North America, this seminar will also present Catholic Church teaching on why it was necessary for Jesus Christ to suffer and die for us, and how we can accept this most precious gift of salvation.

Tuition is free, thanks to a partnership with the diocese, and study can be completed when you have time available during the dates the seminar is offered. Enroll at https://www.pathlms.com/cdu. Be sure to use the access code, CDU20DIOCESWWC, to receive your free tuition.
Wheeling University Graduates Receive Words of Wisdom and Advice from Gov. Justice

WHEELING—West Virginia Governor Jim Justice told the Wheeling University class of 2023 to find their passion and serve others along life’s journey, and make sure to surround themselves with people who are ‘jacked up and happy.’

At the university’s 65th commencement, Wheeling University President Ginny R. Favede awarded degrees to undergraduate, graduate and doctoral students. Justice served as the speaker on Saturday and was awarded an Honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters.

Justice took Babdog at his side, offered the graduates words of wisdom and advice during his remarks. He recalled his last trip to campus in 2019. “There was a time not too long ago that we could have lost this institution and all the odds makers were saying its gone… we would not be here today without all of you. Everyone was pulling the rope together... All of us made this day happen.”

Justice talked about his family’s humble beginnings and how by working hard he became the governor and the owner of many businesses.

“You can do the same thing. You can make it happen with one word that is really, really important, and that’s passion. If you don’t have it, you won’t get there. You’ve got to have a real passion for what you’re going to do. I hope you find the passion,” he said.

Wheeling University’s mission calls its students to serve others, and Justice encouraged the class to continue to live the mission and take time in life to help others throughout lifetime. “You can serve in so many different ways – you can help your neighbor,” he said. “You can help the church and you can help this university.”

The governor warned the graduates the future will have disappointments and be tough at times. “Remember to surround yourself with people that are jacked up, people who are happy – you’ll go much further in life,” he said.

In closing, Justice told the class of 2023 that their professors have prepared them for the next chapter… “You’re ready to go. Remember to look in life for what you love and then get after it,” he said. “You can be everything you want to be.”

The governor and Babdog greeted each graduate after they received their degrees and posed for photos. Prior to handing out diplomas, Favede told the graduates that the class of 2023 that there will never be another class like this, noting they “stayed the course” through a global pandemic, probation and financial exigency. “You were my first class, the class that helped define the resilience of this university.”

She recalled how hard it was “sending you home” when COVID-19 caused a global shutdown in the spring of 2020, noting the class didn’t let the pandemic define their time at Wheeling. After returning to campus from the shutdown, Favede said, “you returned kinder more compassionate and empathetic. Somehow, you held onto the kindness and support of one another, and you kept moving forward... You will be remembered for your compassion, strength and character.”

Favede encouraged graduates “to continue serving others, helping others. It ends up helping you more than anyone.”

Mother Teresa of Calcutta said that the key to world peace lies in remembering that ‘we belong to each other.’ The most powerful thing you can do in the world is stand on the firm ground of your faith and claim your worthiness. Serving others is about doing our best to improve the world.”

Also, she told the students to continue being who they were while they were students. “Continue to be who God meant you to be, love one another unconditionally, and support one another and the Lord. Remember that you are not alone. We are all part of a community, and we have a responsibility to help each other... Your Cardinal family will always be here for you. This campus will always be your home.”

Class valedictorian Kimbria Lance of Fowler, Michigan, told her classmates, that for the past month it seemed like each day someone asked me ‘are you ready to graduate?’ And she responded each time, “not yet, but it’s a good thing graduation isn’t today.”

Lance explained, “In those moments, I was hoping that as our commencement date approached, my feelings of sadness about leaving and anxieties about the future would subside, and I would suddenly ‘be ready to graduate!’ Well, here I am, at graduation and I still don’t ‘feel ready.’ I have found we never feel entirely ready for what God has planned for our lives.”

The past four years, she said, presented each graduate with opportunities and lessons they could...

and plan. I never thought I could be the kind of person who led a Bible study, organized campus activities or podiumed at our conference track meet, let alone graduate at the top of my class, but it is by the grace of God that he made these things possible. He placed the most remarkable people in my life who shaped me into the person I am today. Our university is unique in this way. The opportunities and room we had to learn and grow is like no other,” Lance said.

She also told her classmates to take time to thank and show appreciation to those people who helped get them to “this moment right now. Show you appreciation for their support in your life, because none of us got here alone.”

Wheeling University, she said, will always hold a special place in her heart. “The close-knit community, Catholic roots and wonderful campus are all reasons why I love this place, but the part I love most is the people. As we ponder our favorite memories here, it is the people in those memories that make them significant … I will carry these memories with me forever, because they have shaped me into the person I am today and will always be a part of who I am. I hope that you carry these memories with you wherever God takes you. Remember that it is okay to feel unprepared, because God’s plan is so much greater than anything we could have ever imagined. We must give ourselves enough grace and the freedom to fail, because no accolade or achievement will ever fulfill us in the way we hope it will. It is the people we invest in and our relationships that matter so much more than any grade we get in a class, points we score in a game, or money we make at our job.”

Lance ended by offering a quote from St. Catherine of Siena – “be who God meant you to be and you will set the world on fire.”

“As we receive our diplomas and our time here comes to an end, I challenge each of you to let your light shine and set the world on fire,” Lance said.

The university honored Dr. Bryan Raudenbush, professor of Physical Therapy (Neuroscience & Research), by awarding him the Fr. Edward Gannon, S.J. Outstanding Teaching Award. Each year, Wheeling University gives two medals during commencement to those graduates who have distinguished themselves both in service and in academics. The Mary Woomer Medal and Archbishop John J. Swint Medals, are given to the woman and man in the class who most exemplifies the ideals of Wheeling University. Brooke Briggs was the recipient of the Woomer Medal, while Joshua Wessler was given the Swint Medal.

New Courses Offered through University of Dayton’s Virtual Learning Community for Faith Formation (VLCFF)

WEST VIRGINIA—The Office of Evangelization & Catechesis for the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston has announced two, five-week courses being offered through the University of Dayton’s Virtual Learning Community for Faith Formation (VLCFF).

These courses are hybrid models. They are composed of both weekly live two-hour zoom lectures as well as a rich variety of online course materials and discussion experiences through the University of Dayton’s Virtual Learning Community For Faith Formation (VLCFF). The courses are being underwritten by the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston’s Office of Evangelization & Catechesis, who pays 100% of the tuition and the cost of any books associated with the courses. The course instructor is Dr. Rodica Stoicoiu. For further information or to register, please contact Dr. Stoicoiu at rodicastoi-coiuphd@gmail.com

The Mass

In this course we will examine the core principles of the Eucharistic liturgy as found in the foundational documents of the Mass. We will consider its history and make connections between the modern liturgy and the historical context. Our central point of discussion throughout the course will be focused on the celebration of the Paschal Mystery. Over the course of the five weeks, we will take a deep dive into the elements of the Sunday celebration and its component parts. This course will be of value for liturgical ministers, RCIA Team members, and anyone interested in learning more about this most central celebration of all the baptized. All course materials are online, and we will meet for class lecture/discussion once a week on Tuesday evenings 7-9 pm beginning May 23rd

Images of Jesus

Through this course the participant will have the opportunity to examine, from a variety of theological perspectives, what we know and believe about the central figure of the Christian faith and arguably the most influential person who ever walked the earth. After looking at many different resources, the student will be able to form a personal answer to “Who do you say that I am?”

We will look at the images of Jesus in the New Testament, as understood in theology today, as understood in the Paschal Mystery and as encountered in the liturgical life of the Church. All course materials are online and we will meet for class lecture/discussion once a week on Wednesday evenings 7-9 pm beginning May 24th. This course is part of the sequence for the catechetical certification The Office of Evangelization & Catechesis for the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston.

First Holy Communion

Charlotte Hawkins and Emmitt Sforza made their first holy Communion May 7 at St. Jude Parish in Glen Dale. With them are Deacon George E. Smoulder, left, and Very Rev. John S. Ledford, V.F., pastor of the parish. Little Catholics across the diocese will be making their first holy Communion at their parishes throughout this month.

Marian Library Seeks to Show Mary through Ancient Eyes, New Perspectives

By Gina Christian

(ΟSВ News) — A research library at an Ohio university houses what it calls “the largest dedicated collection of materials on Mary in the world” — and its doors are as open as the Blessed Mother’s arms.

“We are here for everyone, including people with a personal devotion, artists looking for inspiration, academics and theologians,” Sarah Cahalan, executive director of the Marian Library at the University of Dayton in Dayton, Ohio, told OSV News.

Founded in 1943, the Marian Library lives up to its motto of “De Maria numquam satis” (“Never enough about Mary”). Its books, periodicals, articles, prints and religious artifacts — combined with resources in an array of disciplines, including patristics, biblical studies, church history, spirituality, hymnography and iconography — represent 100 languages and form an impressive repository that only one institution can match, said Cahalan.

The library, which supports a number of Marian studies programs offered by the school, led to the creation of the International Marian Research Institute, which hosts the online Marian Forum to promote academic research on Mary. Institute graduate and former faculty member Archbishop Frank Leo now heads the Archdiocese of Toronto, which he entrusted to the Immaculate Heart of Mary.

Currently, the Marian Library is hosting the two-part art exhibit “East Meets West,” which features a private collection of Ukrainian works by women icon makers of the Lviv School in Ukraine, along with selections from the library’s own Ukrainian Marian Collection, which was established in 1981 by Marian Library employee Helen (Halyna) Nkolyshyn.

For Nkolyshyn, who died in 2000, assembling the Ukrainian Marian Collection was a “passion project,” said Cahalan. “Her family had to leave Ukraine because of religious persecution, and her work has become increasingly relevant again.”

The Lviv School women iconographers have brought a contemporary vision to the genre, employing “distinctive styles, color schemes and really interesting (techniques) that people have responded well to,” said Cahalan.

Seeing Mary through fresh eyes is a goal of the Marian Library, one that informs its acquisitions policy, she said.

Cahalan and her colleagues seek to incorporate “more geographic diversity” in the library’s materials by adding pieces from African, Indigenous and other cultures.

“We are actively working to acquire materials that demonstrate the global reach of devotion to Mary, and give a more comprehensive overview of what that devotion looks like today,” she said, pointing to Our Lady of Kibeho, Rwanda — the only Vatican-approved Marian apparition in Africa — as one example.

With “a majority of its material Catholic” in nature, the library is also making “a concerted effort in recent years to show how Mary is presented in other traditions, such as Islam, which is important for ecumenism and interfaith dialogue,” said Cahalan.

Even a few works by Marian detractors, such as “17th-century Protestant authors writing against Catholicism,” can be found on the library’s shelves, she said.

The collection also has its share of the whimsical, said Cahalan. “One of the fun things about Catholicism is that in addition to high art, we certainly churn out a lot of kitsch,” she said.

The library’s Nativity set collection in particular is “an area where people really do let their creativity emerge,” Cahalan said. “We have unconventional animals in the displays that never would have been in Bethlehem 2,000 years ago. And we had one artist who used kitchen implements (for the figures), with the Infant Jesus made from a strawberry huller.”

Mary might smile at such humble innovations — and she herself serves as “a bridge” that connects others, especially the marginalized, to each other, said Cahalan.

“She has a way of drawing people closer to her,” Cahalan said. “She’s strong, brave and courageous, but also known for her humility. I hope we’re doing work that makes her proud.”

Catholic Leaders Welcome ‘Focus on Service’ at King’s Coronation

By Jonathan Luxmoore

OSV News — Catholic leaders in Britain welcomed the ecumenical and interfaith elements in the May 6 coronation of King Charles III and his consort, Queen Camilla, as well as a pledge by the new monarch “not to be served but to serve.”

“The years following the Reformation were a desperately challenging time for Catholics, with priests, religious and laity persecuted and killed for their faith — it is testament to an incredible journey of reconciliation that six Catholic bishops were present at the coronation, including Vatican representatives,” said Archbishop John Wilson of Westminster.

“At every turn, we are facing a choice between division or unity. In every situation and in every place, we can choose to be divided or we can choose to unite — it is a choice we have to make together and we have to seek the healing of the wounds of division in our communities.”

The two-hour coronation ceremony, conducted by Archbishop Justin Welby of Canterbury, primate of England, with the theme “Called to serve,” included the presentation of a Bible to King Charles, who prayed publicly for grace to protect “every faith and belief,” while following “the pattern of Christ.”

The monarch also reaffirmed his loyalty to the “Protestant reformed religion,” and declared himself a “faithful Protestant,” pledging to secure “the Protestant succession,” as supreme governor of the legally established Church of England.

However, he also received blessings from leaders of other churches, including Cardinal Vincent Nichols of Westminster, in the first direct participation of a Catholic leader at a coronation since the 16th century.

In his OSV News interview, Shaw said the king’s pledge to the “Protestant reformed religion” had sounded “strange to modern ears,” but also reflected “historic formulations” that remained binding in Britain.

Another top lay Catholic told OSV News the oath was a legal rather than religious requirement, and was “a lot less anti-Catholic” than it had been previously, when it had included a declaration of the Catholic Mass as “persecution and idolatrous.”

Catherine Pepinster, former editor of Britain’s Catholic weekly, The Tablet, and author of a new book on coronations, “Defenders of the Faith,” added that the Church of England had explained the “history and symbolism” of the coronation in its order of service, showing sensitivity to other religious traditions, and also had made “innovations reflecting national diversity.”

“Many people will have been surprised the coronation was such a religious event, and especially by its focus on the Church of England, which is now just a small practicing minority here,” she said.

Although there will also be some disappointment that other churches weren’t given a fuller role, it was stressed that people of all faiths and none were welcome. The king was shown kneeling at the altar like a humble penitent, before being anointed and receiving God’s grace in moves precisely choreographed to stress his role of service,” Pepinster said.

Westminster Abbey said the coronation, with its historic elements of recognition, oath-taking, anointing, investiture, crowning, enthronement and homage, had been the 39th in the Gothic building since that of William the Conqueror in 1066.

It added that new elements had included the king’s pledge of service, as well as participation by female clergy and Greek Orthodox and Gospel choirs, the use of Welsh, Scots and Irish Gaelic in the liturgy, and a “Homage of the People,” whose wording was modified shortly before the service following criticism. With the “Homage,” the people of the U.K. pledge allegiance to the king.

“The presence of other Christian leaders and leaders of different faith communities speaks to the king’s commitment to maintaining the way of life of this country, with its openness to all faiths, permitting the free expression of these faiths, and joined to the nation’s Christian roots,” Cardinal Nichols said.

“It’s symbolic of the whole ceremony because it respects our history, builds on our history and complements the history,” he said.

Tributes were paid to the new king and queen at a May 7 concert, attended by the royal family and 20,000 members of the public at Windsor Castle, near London, which featured international stars.

British media reported controversy over the arrest of several dozen anti-monarchy protesters during the May 6 ceremonies under new public order laws.

Priests, Seminarians, Laity to Gather May 16 at International Symposium on Priesthood

By Father Patrick Briscoe

WASHINGTON (OSV News)—Canadian Cardinal Marc Ouellet has launched an international movement to revitalize the collaboration between ordained priests and the priesthood of the faithful.

The movement was inspired by a symposium held in Rome in February 2022 and will now include a gathering for American theologians, priests, seminarians and laity that will be held May 16 at The Catholic University of America in Washington.

The event is expected to attract more than 150 people and is co-sponsored by the Center for Research and Anthropology of Vocations, based in France; the Thomistic Institute, which is affiliated with the Dominican House of Studies in Washington; Theological College, the national diocesan seminary of Catholic University; and the Institute for Human Ecology, which also is part of Catholic University.

Archbishop Timothy M. Broglio of the U.S. Archdiocese for the Military Services, who is president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, and Bishop William D. Byrne of Springfield, Massachusetts, will be among the conference presenters.

For Cardinal Ouellet, at stake is the question of how the reciprocality of the priesthood of the baptized and the ordained priesthood are in service to each other. “Society in general but also the church in the United States are struggling with strong polarizations,” the cardinal said. “Better understanding” and “renewed collaboration” among priests and laity is one response to the situation, he added.

Catholic priests face unique challenges today, however. For Cardinal Ouellet, the keys to renewal are “the witness of unity around the bishop” and “charity that gives priority to the most needy.” He encouraged priests to dream of converting their parishes, as the Curé of Ars did, and emphasized that holiness must be “virtuous,” but above all, “missionary.”

The Curé of Ars—St. John Vianney—was known for his priestly and pastoral work in his parish in Ars, France. He is the patron saint of parish priests.

Another priority for Cardinal Ouellet is examining the value of the witness of clerical celibacy. He says that celibacy is a “treasure” which orients and animates a priest in his “missionary openness.” Priestly celibacy is “above all a testimony of faith in the divine Person of Christ which precedes and accompanies the ministry of preaching and the sacraments,” said the cardinal. Despite individual failures and struggles, Cardinal Ouellet judges the discipline “fruitful.”

The inaugural conference in Rome received wide acclaim. Pope Francis opened the conference, delivering the longest speech of his pontificate to participants gathered in the Pope Paul VI Audience Hall. “A priest needs to have a heart sufficiently ‘enlarged’ to expand and embrace the pain of the people entrusted to his care while, at the same time, like a sentinel, being able to proclaim the dawning of God’s grace revealed in that very pain,” the pope said in his opening remarks Feb. 17, 2022.

Over 700 participants were present in Rome and many thousands more joined the symposium virtually. In addition to the cities that have hosted the conference so far—Paris, Abidjan, Ivory Coast, and Madrid—Cardinal Ouellet said that organizers are arranging events in Manila, four major cities in Brazil, and across Africa and South America. A large gathering also is being coordinated for the upcoming World Youth Day in Lisbon, Portugal.

Acknowledging that a theological conference does not have the necessary tools or resources to answer every problem the church faces, Cardinal Ouellet said in his opening remarks to the symposium in Rome, “it can help us deepen the foundation of the church’s mission.”

“In this search for synodal conversion, there is room for a vast theological endeavor which should offer a renewed vision,” which is “a way of valuing all vocations while respecting what is specific to each,” said Cardinal Ouellet, expounding his vision for the project.

Throughout the synods on the family, youth and the church in Amazonia, there was a significant emphasis placed on the priesthood and synodality, highlighting the importance of baptism as the foundation for all vocations, said the cardinal, who retired Jan. 30 as the prefect of the Vatican Dicastery for Bishops. “The time has come to prolong the reflection and to promote a vocational movement facilitating the sharing of the various church experiences all over the planet.”

La Iglesia de San Judas en Allen, Texas, se pronunció sobre el tiroteo masivo ocurrido el domingo en un centro comercial de la ciudad. El obispo de Allen, El Sr. John M. Zarama, dijo en un comunicado que "lo que sucedió el fin de semana en Allen es insoportable y trágico", y que la iglesia se une a la comunidad en luto.

Zarama explicó que el tiroteo ocurrió en un centro comercial en Allen, Texas, el domingo por la tarde. Según el comunicado, el tiroteo dejó al menos 14 muertos y más de 15 heridos.

"Estamos pidiendo a la comunidad que rindamos nuestras oraciones por las víctimas, sus familiares y amigos, y por todos los involucrados en este trágico incidente. "Estamos condenando este acto de violencia y pedimos el perdón y la comprensión para todos los afectados", continuó.

El comunicado también mencionaba que la iglesia está poniendo en marcha un plan para proporcionar ayuda y soporte emocional a los afectados.

"Estamos en constante comunicación con las autoridades y estamos a la disposición de cualquier ayuda que puedan precisar. "Estamos aquí para ustedes, su familia y sus amigos. "Estamos aquí para apoyarlos y ayudarles a afrontar este momento tan difícil", concluyó Zarama.

El comunicado finalizaba con un llamado a la comunidad a mantener la paz y la oración. "Estamos en constante oración por esos que están en el borde de la esperanza y por todas las víctimas de los desastres que asedian a nuestro país. "Estamos aquí para apoyarlos y ayudarles a afrontar este momento tan difícil", concluyó Zarama.

 ESTABLISHED LEADER IN STRUCTURAL HEART CARE

THE MOST ADVANCED TREATMENTS IN WEST VIRGINIA

The nation-leading cardiologists and surgeons of the WVU Heart and Vascular Institute Structural Heart Program at Wheeling specialize in problems with the heart’s valves, walls, or chambers.

We have a multidisciplinary team of experts, including interventional cardiologists, cardiac and vascular surgeons, dedicated nursing staff, and other specialists, to ensure our patients receive the most comprehensive care available for common and complex structural heart conditions.

The WVU Heart and Vascular Institute Structural Heart Program is the only program in West Virginia that offers eight specialized, structural heart procedures and is one of the few programs in the United States (and the only one in West Virginia) offering cerebral embolic protection during transcatheter aortic valve replacement (Protected TAVR) and transcatheter mitral valve replacement.

Our expert team uses the latest catheter-based techniques to treat all forms of structural heart disease, including aortic, mitral, and tricuspid valve diseases and conditions and congenital defects.
