Communion Statement Aims to ‘Retrieve and Revive’ Understanding

By Carol Zimmermann, Catholic News Service

Baltimore (CNS) — The U.S. bishops approved their statement on the Eucharist with 222 “yes” votes Nov. 17, the second of two days of public sessions during their Nov. 15-18 fall general assembly. Their OK came a day after their discussion of the document — a discussion that took a drastically different tone than their previous debate about what the document could potentially contain during their virtual assembly five months ago.

At that June gathering, a major focus highlighted whether it would address denying Communion to Catholic politicians who support abortion.

Some bishops said a strong rebuke of President Joe Biden, the nation’s second Catholic president, should be included in it because of Biden’s recent actions protecting and expanding abortion access, while others warned that this would portray the bishops as a partisan force during a time of bitter political divisions across the country.

The document the bishops discussed and approved does not specifically call out Catholic political

Thanksgiving Interfaith Service Set for Nov. 24 at the Cathedral of St. Joseph

WHEELING—Bishop Mark Brennan will host this year’s Interfaith Thanksgiving Service at 7 p.m., Wednesday, November 24 at the Cathedral of St. Joseph in Wheeling.

Rabbi Joshua Lief, of Temple Shalom in Wheeling, will join Bishop Brennan in leading this year’s service in celebration of the special holiday. The evening will also feature clergy from other denominations in the area that share the common focus of gratitude and service.

The event is free and open to the public. Everyone who attends the service is encouraged to bring a non-perishable item that will be donated to the Catholic Charities Neighborhood Center in Wheeling.

For those unable to attend the event it will be livestreamed on the diocese’s Facebook page.

The discussion, just prior to the vote, focused on some of the statement’s wording. Specific amendments were approved and additional comments about wording changes, that were raised on the floor, did not.

One of the bishops, for example, wanted to add the word “et alia” after a list of vulnerable people the church was responsible for in order to show its broad inclusion, but the bishops, who had already added to the list to include the unborn, chose not to add the additional descriptor.

As points of discussion, Archbishop Joseph F. Naumann of Kansas City, Kansas, outgoing chairman of the U.S. bishops’ pro-life committee, stressed the prelates must not forget the unborn, chosen not to add the additional descriptor.

Back in June, at the end of the bishops’ discussion of the document, Bishop Kevin C. Rhoades of Fort Wayne-South Bend, Indiana, chairman of the bishops’ doctrine committee, said the draft

To Report Suspected Cases of Sexual Abuse of Children

To Report Suspected Cases of Sexual Abuse of Children: The Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston encourages reporting to civil authorities first and foremost if a crime has been committed. We also encourage utilizing www.reportbishopabuse.org to make a report about any bishop in the U.S. If you have reason to believe that a bishop has engaged in sexual misconduct or has interfered with an investigation into sexual misconduct, please contact civil authorities in the applicable jurisdiction and visit www.reportbishopabuse.org.

To Report to Civil Authorities: Contact your local law enforcement: numbers will vary based on your jurisdiction. If you believe someone is in immediate danger, call 911. To confidentially report any suspected incidence of child abuse or neglect, including sexual abuse, contact the West Virginia Bureau for Children and Families’ Child Protective Services by calling the Child Abuse Hotline at 800.352.6513. You may report anonymously to this hotline if you prefer.

To Report to Diocesan Authorities: The diocese encourages reporting to the appropriate civil authorities as a first step. However, if a bishop has engaged in sexual misconduct or has interfered with an investigation into sexual misconduct, please contact civil authorities in the applicable jurisdiction and visit www.reportbishopabuse.org.

The diocese also has partnered with Navex Global to offer the EthicsPoint platform to report other, additional concerns, such as suspected financial, professional, and personal misconduct of a priest, deacon, religious, or lay employee of the Diocese or any Catholic parish or school in West Virginia. The EthicsPoint platform can be accessed online at www.dwc.org, under “Accountability”, then “Report Misconduct” or by calling 844.723.8381. EthicsPoint is a third-party reporting system that reports to civil authorities where applicable and Diocesan authorities, and the identity of the person reporting is protected.

Sexual Abuse Awareness Training

The U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) requires that all Dioceses/Eparchies have in place a Safe Environment Program for the protection of children and young people. In accordance with these requirements, the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston’s Safe Environment Program consists of the following components for persons seeking employment or to volunteer—directly or indirectly—with children: background check; reception of the Diocese’s Policy Re- lating to Sexual Abuse of Children; and sexual abuse awareness training for adults. Sexual abuse awareness training may be completed online or via live workshop. For more information on the Office of Safe Environment, please go to www.dwc.org, click “Diocese”, then “Offices,” then “Office of Safe Environment.”

would not focus on deny- ing Communion to people but would emphasize the importance of the sacra- ment.

And in his Nov. 16 pres- entation of the 26-page statement titled “The Mys- temy of the Eucharist in the Life of the Church,” Bishop Rhoades said it “addresses the fundamental doctrine about the Eucharist that the church needs to re- retrieve and revive.”

In his short presentation to U.S. bishops, followed by just a handful of com- ments from the floor, the bishop said the document is addressed to all Catholics in the United States and “endeavors to explain the centrality of the Eucharist in the life of the church.”

He also said it is intend- ed to be a theological con- tribution to the bishops’ strategic plan and to the bishops’ planned eucharis- tic revival “by providing a doctrinal resource for par- ishes, catechists and the faithful.”

Discussion from the floor included a request from Bishop Peter Bal- dacchino of Las Cruces, New Mexico, that the doc- ument include more about the paschal mystery, or the death and resurrection of Jesus.

Bishop Richard F. Stika of Knoxville, Tennessee, wondered how the doc- ument would be under- stood by college students, high schoolers or children, noting that “a lot of it’s over their heads” and they would have to have some kind of theological founda- tion to grasp it.

“We have these beauti- ful, beautiful documents that sometimes are just ig- nored,” he said, suggesting that it should be made “more readable and understand- able.”

In response, Bishop Rhoades said the document “as it stands is really meant for adults,” but he could see it being used in high schools with a teacher who would explain it better. He also said it could be devel- oped by publishers as a re- source for catechesis for grade school students.

Bishop Timothy L. Do- herty of Lafayette, Indiana, said the work put in “laboring over texts should not discourage us,” pointing out that often language falls short but that the church has many other means at its disposal to ex- press the faith such as music, dance, poetry and visuals.

The draft of the doc- ument explains the impor- tance of Communion, often calling it a gift, and uses references from Scrip- ture, prayers of the church and Second Vatican Coun- cil documents to back this up. It also explains, citing words of the saints, how Communion is not just a symbol but the real pres- ence of Christ.

This transformation of bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ, the document says, is “one of the central mysteries of the Catholic faith” which is a “doorway through which we, like the saints and mys- tics before us, may enter into a deeper perception” of God’s presence.

It notes, almost halfway through, that the Vatican II document “Lumen Gen- tium” (The Dogmatic Con- stitution on the Church) describes the Eucharist as “the source and summit of the Christian life.” It also says that as Catholics un- derstand what the Eucha- rist means, they should more fully participate in Mass and also reach out to serve those in need, citing the Catechism of the Cath- olic Church, which says: “The Eucharist commits us to the poor.”

It concludes with exam- ples of saints who were transformed by their recep- tion of the Eucharist and their deep understanding of what it means.

This heavily footnoted statement also has a pasto- ral message urging those who have left the church to come back. It ties this re- turn back to the Eucharist quoting St. Teresa of Kol- kata, who said: “Once you understand the Eucharist, you can never leave the church. Not because the church won’t let you but because your heart won’t let you.”

What this document might say and how it could specifically call out Biden and other Catholic politi- cians has been disputed for months and has not just been a topic for the U.S. bishops and Catholics ac- ross the country, but also involved the Vatican.

Prior to the bishops’ initial discussion of this doc- ument, Cardinal Luis La- daria, prefect of the Vati- can’s Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, urged the bishops in a letter to proceed with caution in developing a national pol- icy “to address the situ- ation of Catholics in public office who support legisla- tion allowing abortion, euthanasia or other moral evils.”

And Pope Francis said on a Sept. 15 flight back from Bratislava, Slovakia, that he preferred not to comment directly on the issue of denying Communion, but he urged U.S. bishops to take a pastoral approach rather than wade into the political sphere.
U.S. Bishops Spotlight Programs on Eucharist, Young People, Moms in Need

By Catholic News Service

BALTIMORE (CNS) — The U.S. bishops spotlighted two major initiatives focused on the central role of the Eucharist and young Catholics next June; were urged to improve financial oversight for the USCCB and a family ministry that they had approved at their spring assembly; and heard how the pandemic may have slowed but not stopped a pro-life initiative called “Walking With Moms in Need.”

The bishops approved guidelines governing the USCCB’s financial investments that include wider limits on where money would be invested. The guidelines advance a policy of engagement on corporate practices that impact human dignity.

The prelates, meeting in person for the first time since 2019, also approved guidelines for the exposition of the Eucharist and Benediction, affirmed saithhood causas for three U.S. laypeople, approve revisions of statutes for the catechumenate and a new optional memorial on the U.S. liturgical calendar.

The vote was 223-4 to approve the budget for 2022 that was crafted with upheavals wrought by the coronavirus pandemic fresh in mind. “The anomaly of 2020 made challenges for predicting 2022,” said Bishop Gregory L. Parkes of St. Petersburg, Florida, treasurer of the USCCB and chairman of its Committee on Budget and Finance, in an introductory message to his fellow bishops.

Due to illness, Bishop Parkes was not present in Baltimore, where the bishops’ Nov. 15-18 fall general meeting was held. Despite the uncertainties, the overall budget carries a revenue surplus of $527,080. Bishop Parkes noted. Part of that is driven by investment income averaging of the past three years. “In this case,” he said, “while 2018 was a loss, both 2019 and 2020 experienced double-digit gains.” The vote was 223-4 to approve the budgets, with five abstentions. Approval required a majority of bishops present and voting.

Church Cannot Repair What it Does Not Recognize, Cardinal Says on Abuse

By Carol Glatz, Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Gathering information and statistics on the sexual abuse of minors is an important tool for assessing established responses and for crafting recommendations to fix a failed system, said U.S. Cardinal Sean P. O’Malley of Boston, president of the Pontifical Commission for the Protection of Minors.

"We cannot repair what we do not recognize. We cannot restore a broken trust if we do not address the heart of the matter. This requires honest investigation, independent inquiry and informed action," the cardinal said in a written message.

The message, published Nov. 18, was sent to a conference marking the European Day on the Protection of Children against Sexual Exploitation and Sexual Abuse — held every Nov. 18 and promoted by the Council of Europe. The Nov. 18 conference in Rome was sponsored by the "Telefono Azurro" abuse help line in Italy, whose founder and president is Ernesto Caño, an Italian professor of child and adolescent psychiatry and a member of the papal commission.

"We cannot repair what we do not recognize. We cannot restore a broken trust if we do not address the heart of the matter. This requires honest investigation, independent inquiry and informed action," the cardinal said in a written message.

"In Australia, 40% of the child sexual abuse that took place in the period under review of the Royal Commission of Inquiry occurred in an area related to the Catholic Church," the cardinal added.

"These are astounding statistics. But we cannot allow our reaction to them to obscure their purpose: To assess the measures taken by the church to treat this scourge and to make all useful recommendations for the transformation of a failed system based on quantitative and qualitative analysis," he wrote.

"The church must be open to learning from civil society and academia in terms of scientific models of research for a more informed approach to our prevention strategies and protection policies, on the ground and online," he said.

The cardinal said the different walk events being held across the United States Nov. 18 were aimed at raising awareness about “the role faith leaders can play in safeguarding children and advocating for survivor and family healing."

Catholic Advocates Express Optimism on Future of Immigration Reform

By Rhina Guidos, Catholic News Service

BOSTON (CNS) — Catholic immigration advocates sent a positive message to U.S. prelates at end of the Nov. 17 public session of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops’ fall general assembly, saying 5 million to 11 million people in the U.S. could soon benefit from some type of immigration reform.

Anna Gallagher, executive director of the Catholic Legal Immigration Network, told the bishops in Baltimore that they should be proud of a program started by U.S. prelates.

“I’m proud to say that we have grown from an organization of a handful of advocates started by Bishop (Nicholas) DiMarzio in the 1980s, during the first amnesty, to now over 400 affiliates and we are prepared for the second amnesty,” she said. “The Catholic Church created what I call the largest poor people’s immigration law firm in the country.”

Affiliates of the agency, known as CLINIC, have over the years helped one of the most vulnerable of the country’s populations, she said.

At the same time, advocates are seeing increasing numbers of migrants in need, including many seeking safety who are being deported.

“This is a time of particular challenge and opportunity,” said Gallagher. “Thousands of men, women and children are living in misery at our southern border, waiting for access to justice. Thousands of families have been deported from the United States and continued to be deported without access to justice.”

“Millions of our brothers and sisters, our immigrant brothers and sisters, are in the United States without status, caring for our children, working in our hospitals, cleaning our homes and providing essential services, without (legal) status,” she said. Yet there’s hope that soon they may be some legislation to help some of them, she said.

In a separate presentation about immigration, Auxiliary Bishop Mario E. Dorsonville of Washington, chairman of the USCCB’s migration committee, said the public has expressed overwhelming support for recipients of Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals — minors brought into the U.S. illegally as children — as well as farmworkers.

“People want reform for these groups,” he said, adding that the migrants aren’t asking for a house or for material goods, but simply the chance to make a new life in the U.S.

He asked the bishops to advocate, pray and walk with immigrants in their respective dioceses.

Gallagher asked bishops to visit CLINIC affiliates in their localities.

“As we wait, we are hopeful that legalization will happen, and it will be (for) anywhere between 3 million to 11 million. Our great hope is that it will be 11 million,” Gallagher said.

Bishop Dorsonville said the bishops would receive a document detailing statistics about immigration as well as stories behind the human faces and human tragedy in immigration stories.

He asked that bishops not only accompany migrants in their dioceses but also inform themselves about those in their communities. “Advocacy cannot be done without facts,” he said. He also asked them to seek the intercession of Mary to help migrants as they accompany them in prayer.

“Pray so Mary can be the intercessor for these communities,” he said. “Our hope is that everyone may be embracing this sense of prayer with immigrant communities ... that God in his love entrusted in our care.”
Gomez: Church Must Proclaim Christ ‘Boldly’ in Response to ‘Woke’ Movements

By Catholic News Service

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — The Catholic Church must proclaim Jesus Christ “boldly” and “creatively” in the face of new secular movements that promote “social justice,” “wokeness” and “intersectionality,” among other beliefs, as the answer to all of society’s ills, Los Angeles Archbishop José H. Gomez said Nov. 4.

“We need to tell our story of salvation in a new way, with charity and confidence, without fear,” he said. “This is the church’s mission in every age and every cultural moment.”

Archbishop Gomez made the comments in a videotaped address for the upcoming 23rd Catholic and Public Life Congress in Madrid, which organizers said will focus on political correctness and “the dangers of this mega-ideology,” such as preventing debate and limiting freedoms.

He spoke on “the rise of new secular ideologies and movements for social change in the United States and the implications for the Catholic Church.”

“The church needs to understand these movements as pseudo-religions, and even replacements and rivals to traditional Christian beliefs,” he said, because “they claim to offer what religion provides.”

“With the breakdown of the Judeo-Christian worldview and the rise of secularism, political belief systems based on social justice or personal identity have come to fill the space that Christian belief and practice once occupied,” he said.

“We all know that while there are unique conditions in the United States, similar broad patterns of aggressive secularization have long been at work in Spain and elsewhere in Europe,” he said.

“An elite leadership class has risen in our countries that has little interest in religion and no real attachments to the nations they live in or to local traditions or cultures,” said Archbishop Gomez, who is president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.

“This group, which is in charge in corporations, governments, universities, the media, and in the cultural and professional establishments,” he said, “wants to establish what we might call a global civilization, built on a consumer economy and guided by science, technology, humanitarian values and technocratic ideas about organizing society.”

“There is no need for old-fashioned belief systems and religions,” he added. “In fact, as they see it, religion, especially Christianity, only gets in the way of the society they hope to build.”

Secularization means “de-Christianization,” as many popes have pointed out, he said. “For years now, there has been a deliberate effort in Europe and America to erase the Christian roots of society and to suppress any remaining Christian influences.”

Archbishop Gomez noted the congress’ program alluded to “cancel culture” along with political correctness.

“We recognize that often what is being canceled and corrected are perspectives rooted in Christian beliefs — about human life and the human person, about marriage, the family and more,” he said. “The ‘space’ that the church and believing Christians are permitted to occupy is shrinking,” he said.

“Now more than ever,” he said, “the church and every Catholic needs to know” the Christian story, “and proclaim it in all its beauty and truth.”

Because, he said, there is another story out there — “a rival ‘salvation’ narrative that we hear being told in the media and in our institutions by the new social justice movements.”

Catholics and other Christians, he said, believe “we are created in the image of God ... and we are saved through the dying and rising of Jesus Christ ... (who) calls us to follow him in faith, loving God and our neighbor, working to build his kingdom on earth, all in confident hope that we will have eternal life with him in the world to come.”

The “woke” story, he explained, says that “we cannot know where we came from, but we are aware that we have interests in common with those who share our skin color or our position in society. ... We are liberated and find redemption through our constant struggle against our oppressors, by waging a battle for political and cultural power in the name of creating a society of equity.”

“We all want to build a society that provides equality, freedom, and dignity for every person,” Archbishop Gomez said. “But we can only build a just society on the foundation of the truth about God and human nature. ... Unless we believe that God is our Father, there is no reason for us to treat others as our brothers and sisters.”

“Today’s critical theories and ideologies are profoundly atheistic,” he continued. “They deny the soul, the spiritual, transcendent dimension of human nature; or they think that it is irrelevant to human happiness. They reduce what it means to be human to essentially physical qualities — the color of our skin, our sex, our notions of gender, our ethnic background or our position in society.”

“No doubt,” he added, “we can recognize in these movements certain elements of liberation theology. They seem to be coming from the same Marxist cultural vision. Also, these movements resemble some of the ideologies that we find in church history.”

The Catholic Church must “understand and engage” these movements as “dangerous substitutes for true religion.”

“These new movements have lost the truth about the human person” because they deny God, he said. “No matter how well-intentioned they are, they cannot promote authentic human flourishing.”

In the United States, “these strictly secular movements are causing new forms of social division, discrimination, intolerance and injustice,” he added.

Bishop Brennan Visits Catholic Schools, Celebrates Mass for Students

Bishop Mark E. Brennan bestows the final blessing at the Mass he celebrated at Immaculate Conception Church in Clarksburg Nov. 2 for students of Notre Dame High School and St. Mary Central School. Before the Mass, the bishop toured both of the schools. Since August, Bishop Brennan has been making visits to the diocese’s Catholic schools around the state and celebrating Masses for students. He began the visits in Beckley Aug. 30 at St. Francis de Sales School. His latest visit was to Corpus Christi School in Wheeling Nov. 8.
St. Paul School Students Help Bring Holiday Joy to Those in Need in Weirton

St. Paul School students know the importance of serving the community of Weirton. Not only do they volunteer for over 300 hours of community service annually, they know the importance of giving back.

Years ago, St. Paul School’s Parent Teacher Organization initiated a “Pay It Forward” series that coincides with the holiday season. Students and families support local organizations such as Kelsey’s Christmas, Weirton United Way, The Salvation Army, and the Weirton Community Bread Basket.

To support their community for the Thanksgiving holiday, students collected and donated 460 pounds of non-perishable food to the Weirton Community Bread Basket. Students collected Thanksgiving favorites such as peas & carrots, mashed potatoes, stuffing, noodles, and gravy! The donation was made on Nov. 16—just in time for Thanksgiving dinner!

The St. Paul School “Pay It Forward” series will continue through Christmas. Be on the lookout for St. Paul School students ringing the Salvation Army Christmas bells at your local stores.

Wearing shoes designed by his 6-year-old daughter and a shirt bearing the name of his home state, Jarred Spataro crossed the finish line of the New York City Marathon after almost 4 ½ straight hours of running.

“Everything lined up perfectly,” including the weather, the 36-year-old Martinsburg resident said.

His aqua sneakers with orange-pink swooshes and matching laces led him through many training runs and helped him complete the 26.2-mile event on Nov. 7 in 4:29:02. He averaged 10:16 per mile, placing 12,240th out of 24,940 runners.

He shaved more than 30 minutes off his time from the 2019 marathon — the Marine Corps Marathon in the fall of 2018 in the Washington, D.C., area.

Spataro's blue and gold tank top reading “West Virginia” caused many shouts of “Let’s Go, Mountaineers” and “Go Dub-V,” as well as some singing of “Country Roads” by spectators along the course, which winds through Staten Island, Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx and Manhattan.

“It is really, really, really packed,” Spataro said of the streets along the course. “It’s basically a 26-mile party,” including bands and DJs. “It’s crazy that total strangers are out there cheering you on.”

There also were people dear to him there to encourage him as the span of miles sprawled before him. His wife, Kristin; daughter Kelsey, who is in kindergarden at St. Joseph School in Martinsburg; and his parents, John and Valerie Spataro. Made their way to the finish line to pick up a bat, my dad was pitching for the Bulldogs’ football team and a catcher in baseball.

“I missed competing,” he said, “basically took everything out of me. The last 2 ½ miles was pure misery.”

A few days after the race, he said the sore quadricep muscles he was still nursing were worth it, even if they caused him to have to walk backward down steps for a few more days.

“It was a lot of fun, relatively speaking,” he said of pushing himself past a physical breaking point.

He trained for about 16 weeks to prepare for the event, doing long runs on Mondays (his longest was 21 miles), as well as interval training and hill workouts. He also did strength training and stretching with friend and SJS alumni Nate Sowers.

“I just felt like I was in a better position this time,” Spataro said.

He hopes to set an example for his daughter, “to work for something you want to do.”

“I just hope one day she understands if you put your mind to something,” you can achieve it, he said.

Once he has fully recovered, he hopes to lose the fit base he has already signed up for the Bank of America Chicago Marathon in 2023, for which he might prepare with the fall 2022 half-marathon event in the Baltimore Running Festival or perhaps a second go at the Marine Corps Marathon.

Spataro didn’t start running until 2017, after wanting to shed some pounds after a beach vacation.

He missed competing,” he said, “though not so much against others, but himself. I wish I’d done this a long time ago.”

BUCKHANNON—For the Year of St. Joseph, Holy Rosary Parish in Buckhannon had a rock garden planted to honor this beloved saint next to the front outdoor entrance to Marist Hall.

“We invite every family to place a large stone in the rock garden,” parish officials said. “You may have one on your property. If you don’t have one, ask your neighbor or just bring a medium sized one.”

Parishioners are encouraged to do this before Dec. 8 as the parish hopes to have a special dedication and blessing near that time. The parish also plans to place a memorial stone in front of the scarlet maple. The inscription on the memorial will read: “ST. JOSEPH, PATRON OF FATHERS, PRAY FOR US.”

“St. Joseph is the patron of many people and institutions. We will honor the many fathers, grandfathers, and great-grandfathers of our parish with our wording,” parish officials said. “We hope you will participate.”

CLARKSBURG—Notre Dame High School and St. Mary Central School in Clarksburg invite all to join the #TwoSchoolsOneFamily for Holiday Open House on Sunday, Dec. 5 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

“The holly and the jolly will be spread throughout both buildings!” officials of the schools said.

St. Mary Central will have a holiday market as well as live entertainment from the kindergarten through 12th-grade students from The Performing Arts Conservatory at Notre Dame High School. Notre Dame will be the home for lunch, eat-in and take-home desserts, as well as the Festival of Trees.

“And that’s not all...Santa Claus is coming to town!!!” officials said. “Jolly Old St. Nicholas himself will be on hand for visits and photos throughout the afternoon.”

CCHD: Supporting Institutional and Social Change

By Susan Hollis, Diocesan Director, Catholic Campaign for Human Development

One in eight people in the United States lives in poverty. One in six West Virginians lives under that same strain. Along with the physical struggles of poverty, the poor may not know how to make change happen in their lives.

Seeking to create positive change, the Catholic Campaign for Human Development (CCHD) was started by the United States Council of Catholic Bishops in 1969. CCHD strives to break the cycle of poverty by helping low-income people participate in decisions that affect their lives, families, and communities. Through funding community and economic development projects, CCHD helps people take hold of new and good things in their lives to help bring themselves up out of poverty.

Currently in the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston, CCHD is working with HOH Share, Inc. HOH Share, located in Wheeling, promotes positive change for those who are poor and live without housing. “We invest in innovative, people-driven projects that have unique approaches to giving voice, validity and dignity to the marginalized,” says Kate Marshall, Executive Director of HOH Share.

With funding from CCHD, HOH Share is developing an advocacy arm of the organization. In the early stages they are starting by conducting listening sessions to better understand the core struggles that people are dealing with. From this intentional listening, HOH Share is creating a platform from which to fight for institutional and social change for people in the state.

Lauren Kotz, a Peer Recovery Coach with HOH Share, said, "After the first listening session I already feel more excited, more empowered and like we really can create change in our community. I went home so fulfilled and actually really believing that we are going to do good stuff in our community!"

HOH Share continues to empower those who are most vulnerable with this proactive approach to community organizing.

The Catholic Campaign for Human Development is proud to partner with amazing grassroots organizations to eradicate poverty and offer the poor a hand up, not a hand out.

CNEWA lanza nuevo sitio web en español, campaña de oración de noviembre

Por Catholic News Service
NUEVA YORK (CNS) — La Asociación Católica de Bienestar del Cercano Oriente ha lanzado un sitio web en español — cnewa.org/es — que coincide con una campaña de oración durante el mes de noviembre.

Un comunicado de prensa de CNEWA (por sus siglas en inglés) señaló que amigos y benefactores de esta agencia del Vaticano están invitados a compartir los nombres de aquellos seres queridos que murieron, para ser recordados en noviembre en las misas diarias que celebrará Monseñor Peter J. Vaccari, presidente de la agencia.

Los nombres de los fallecidos serán ubicados en el altar de la capilla de CNEWA, en su sede de Estados Unidos en el distrito neoyorquino de Manhattan.

“Nos complace ofrecer esta oportunidad de oración a los católicos latinos y proporcionar un nuevo recurso que será una plataforma en constante evolución, que presentará el mundo latino de las iglesias orientales a la creciente población latina del país”, expresó Monseñor Vaccari en un comunicado.

La campaña de oración de noviembre marca el primer acercamiento de CNEWA a latinos y católicos de habla hispana en Estados Unidos, que constituyen aproximadamente un tercio de los 70 millones de hispanohablantes católicos estimados en el mundo. Durante todo el mes de noviembre, los católicos de todo el mundo rezan por los difuntos. Conocidos como el Mes de las Santas Almas, este comienza con el Día de Todos los Santos el 1 de noviembre y el Día de Todas las Almas el 2 de noviembre. Sin embargo, esta costumbre católica no termina al final del mes, ya que es una práctica diaria para muchos.

“Las iglesias orientales, católicas, y ortodoxas no son desconocidas para los centroamericanos y sudamericanos”, indicó Monseñor Vaccari. “Comunidades sustanciales de cristianos orientales han emigrado de Europa del Este y Oriente Medio, a Argentina, Chile, Honduras, México, y Venezuela durante más de un siglo”.

CNEWA trabaja para y con las iglesias orientales en el Oriente Medio, el noreste de África, India, y Europa del Este.

Fundada por el papa Pío XI en 1926, la agencia brinda ayuda a las religiosas que cuidan a niños necesitados; ayuda a familias desplazadas y refugiadas; ofrece atención médica a los más necesitados; apoya la formación y educación de seminaristas, religiosas, y líderes catequéticos; patrocina programas de catequesis para niños y jóvenes; y financia iniciativas para los marginales — especialmente ancianos y los que tienen necesidades especiales.

Para denunciar presuntos casos de abuso sexual de niños: La Diócesis de Wheeling-Charleston alienta a informar ante las autoridades civiles ante todo si se ha cometido un delito. También alentamos a utilizar www.reportbishopabuse.org para hacer un informe sobre cualquier obispo en los EE.UU. Si tiene motivos para creer que un obispo ha cometido una conducta sexual inapropiada, comuníquese con las autoridades civiles de la jurisdicción correspondiente y visite www.reportbishopabuse.org.

Además de los métodos enumerados anteriormente para denunciar el abuso sexual, la Diócesis también se ha asociado con Navex Global para ofrecer la plataforma EthicsPoint para informar otras inquietudes adicionales, como sospecha de mala conducta financiera, profesional y personal de un sacerdote, diacono, religioso, o empleado laico de la Diócesis o cualquier parroquia o escuela católica en West Virginia. Se puede acceder a la plataforma EthicsPoint a través de www.dwc.org, en “Rendición de cuentas”, luego “Informar mala conducta” o llamando al 844.725.8381. EthicsPoint es un sistema de informes de terceros que informa a las autoridades civiles cuando corresponda y a las autoridades diocesanas, y la identidad de la persona que informa esta protegida.
